Indians Awake To Ottawa Bid

OTTAWA (CP) — Reawakened Indian nationalism clashed publicly Thursday with the Canadian government's newly-declared intention to encourage the Indians to be citizens just like other Canadians.

"Cultural genocide" and "destruction of a nation of people by legislation," charged the National Indian Brotherhood at a news conference called to comment on a new policy announced Wednesday by Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien.

The essence of the conflict seemed to be that Mr. Chretien intended the Indians to have the same status as other citizens, while the Indians see themselves as "more than just citizens of Canada."

The Indian Brotherhood argues that Mr. Chretien's new policy ignores previous recognition by the federal government that Indians have aboriginal, residual and statutory rights that make them more than ordinary Canadians.

Central among these rights is the land question, especially in British Columbia where the Nishga tribal council has launched legal action asking the courts to declare that the Indians still legally own all of the province.

In Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Indian bands signed treaties with the white man years ago which set aside land tracts owned jointly by band members. Some Ontario and Quebec bands also signed treaties and were assigned reserves.

The Indian brotherhood argues that, as in British Columbia, lands in the Atlantic provinces really belong to them, that the Indian title was never extinguished.

The brotherhood took a similar stand about the Yukon and Northwest Territories. The Indian affairs department takes the stand that the Indians are entitled to reserves in the territories or to some other settlement of their claims to be determined by negotiation.

The reserves have been the strongholds of Indian culture. While Indians are not obliged to live there, about three-quarters of the 244,000 registered Indians still do.

But the reserve population has remained stable, while the total Indian population is growing. The growth has started a trend to off-reserve living.

First Man To Land On Moon Maybe Pulled A Little Rank?

HOUSTON (AP) — Neil Armstrong used his "commander's prerogative" to become the first man scheduled to land on the moon, a former space agency official says. But other officials say no firm plan ever was made to have anyone else make the first footprints on the moon.

Judges Rap S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — Two South African Supreme Court judges today attacked a law giving the government wide powers to cloak the operations of its new bureau of state security.

In one of the strongest censures of a government measure ever made by a South African judge, Justice Jacobus Marais said at a public meeting he was impelled to speak out because of the importance and far-reaching implications of the measure.

A part of the act passed through Parliament last week gives cabinet ministers power to prevent evidence being given in courts of law if they believe it to be against the interests of the state.

Marais said he was breaking the rule that judges do not discuss their work because he had "good reason to be worried about the dignity, independence and esteem of the judiciary in the present South African system of things."

In a newspaper interview another Supreme Court judge, Justice Joseph Laidorf, endorsed Marais's stand.

Paul Haney, former public affairs officer at the Manned Spacecraft Centre, said Thursday that for almost three years the lunar module pilot, not the commander, had been scheduled to be first on the moon, "regardless of personalities."

Asked if he thought Armstrong pulled rank to become the first on the moon, Haney said:

"It shouldn't be that he pulled rank, but I think he was not unaware of the importance of the first man who stepped on to the moon and looked at it very carefully and decided that perhaps it should be the commander's prerogative."

George Low, Apollo program manager, said that the selection of Armstrong as the first man represents no change, although preliminary studies had been made with the lunar module pilot as the first man on the moon.

"The only firm plan ever made was the one we're going to go with," said Low. He said it is based on rehearsals of the moon surface activities and on the recommendation of flight crew training officials.

Present plans call for Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin to land the Apollo 11 lunar module on the moon July 20. In the early hours of July 21, Armstrong is to walk down a ladder to the moon's surface. He is to be followed 27 minutes later by Aldrin.

WELL, ANYWAY, THE PREMIER...

Invitations by the thousands are being received now by Manitobans across Canada to visit with their families and participate in the province's 100th birthday celebrations next year. The invitations are from the premier of Manitoba.

When wives ask "Who's the premier of Manitoba?" husbands are answering: "Well, we don't know at the moment."

Manitoba had an almost indecisive election June 25.

Wheat Poser Studied

OTTAWA (CP) — An early conference of wheat-exporting countries to discuss price cutting in the world market was foreseen today by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

Mr. Sharp tabled in the Commons a copy of the communiqué issued Thursday following a Canada-U.S. ministerial meeting in Washington.

The communiqué said ministers of the two countries noted with concern developments that had placed "serious pressure" on price provisions of the International Grains Arrangement.

They expressed readiness for bilateral consultations with other governments to restore stability in the international wheat market.

"I would hope it will be possible for wheat-exporting countries to meet very soon to discuss these important issues," Mr. Sharp told the Commons.

The minister also informed the House he expects talks on the level of Canadian oil exports to the U.S. will open Monday in Washington.

The communiqué Thursday did not deal directly with Canada's desire for a larger slice of the U.S. oil market.

However, an annex to the communiqué said the ministers — officially constituted as the joint Canada-U.S. committee on trade and economic affairs — had recognized the importance of the oil question for the two countries.

Isis 1 Sends Vital Data

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Isis 1, the most complicated of Canada's three space satellites, has sent back important data for scientists about the earth's ionosphere and has disclosed some unexplained phenomena.

Results were presented publicly for the first time Thursday to the Canadian Association of Physicists meeting at the University of Waterloo.

Isis 1 for ionosphere studies — contained instruments to measure simultaneously 10 different things about the ionosphere — the region from 25 to more than 250 miles above the earth's surface. Scientists from Canada, Britain and the United States have equipment aboard the Canadian-built package launched in January. It took all day Thursday to present 14 papers on the experiments "jammed" into the 500-pound satellite.

NEW DISCOVERY

For one thing, Isis 1 discovered new features about peculiar "ducts" in the ionosphere that trap radio waves. Such a wave can be bounced four or five times from North to South Pole through one of the ducts and hardly lose any energy.

"You can fire the waves through them almost like a pipe," said Dr. Morrel Bachynski of Montreal, president of the association.

Isis 1 also measured the sun's influence on the ionosphere, which can cause the northern lights, radio interference and changes in the earth's magnetic field.

In spite of the currently damp conditions, the Kelowna Fire Brigade has no respite from the insistent fire bell. The crew was summoned at 6:25 p.m. Wednesday to quell a blaze in a vacant shed at 1432 St. Paul St.

No estimate of damage is available. Most recent call came at 9:25 a.m., Thursday in response to a car fire at the corner of Pandosy and Rose Avenue. Only minor damage resulted.

Drug Raids Net More Suspects Across Province

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Charges have been laid and arrests are continuing throughout British Columbia as the result of a two-month investigation by police of key figures in the underground narcotics trade.

Vancouver police began a roundup Thursday of eight persons charged with drug trafficking and by noon six were in custody.

Ernest Sydney Brunt, 38, is charged with two counts of possessing narcotics for the purpose of trafficking; Lorne Dewar Wenn, 40, with one count of possessing narcotics for the purpose of trafficking; Michael Platko, 21, one count of possessing narcotics for the purpose of trafficking.

All three are from Vancouver. Philip Smith was arrested and held by Burnaby police. Another two persons were already in custody but have not yet been informed of the new charges.

In the Okanagan, three men and a girl, arrested in the sweep, were arraigned Thursday before Magistrate D. M. White in Kelowna.

Charges of selling LSD were read to Wayne Rene Randall Pilon of Toronto, Thomas Walter Littlewood of Vancouver, Robert Angus Alexander Collinson of Kelowna and Annette Popow of Nelson.

Crown counsel requested that no plea be heard from the suspects until a section of the Food and Drug Act, under which the four are charged, is checked with Ottawa.

YO GET BAIL

Bail was set at two sureties of $2,500 for Collinson and Littlewood but was refused to Pilon, who had warrants pending from Toronto police.

Miss Popow was given an opportunity to speak to bail but refused until she could consult a lawyer.

RCMP at Kelowna said Thursday that Richard Lionel

Norgan, 18, of Vancouver was arrested in Squamish, 30 miles north of Vancouver, Wednesday night in possession of hashish.

They said charges would be pursued there before he is returned to Kelowna to answer another charge.

Also in Kelowna, John Robert Young, 18, was remanded without plea to July 3 on two charges of trafficking in marijuana. He was released on bail — two sureties in the total amount of $5,000.

In Prince George, John Lansdell, 25, and David Winters, 18, both of Prince George, were found guilty in magistrate's court Wednesday on charges of trafficking in marijuana. They were remanded to July 5 for a pre-sentence report.

In Vernon, two men appeared in magistrate's court Wednesday on charges of trafficking in drugs.

Donald Ashley Sergeant was released on bail of $2,000 after he pleaded not guilty to a charge of selling mescaline. He will appear in court July 3.

Gary Edward Knapton entered no plea and was ordered held in custody on charges of selling LSD and trafficking in a type of resin drug derived from marijuana.

Police say further arrests are pending but will release few details except that undercover work by two RCMP constables since April was responsible for the province-wide roundup, the biggest ever organized outside the Lower Mainland.

It's 'Business As Usual' Says OK Phones Manager

It's "business as usual," with the Okanagan Telephone Co., according to district manager, P. A. Maudrell, who said today in Kelowna the current strike by the British Columbia Telephone Co. has had no effect on local employees "because we are a separate entity."

The province-wide strike involves 6,200 members of the British Columbia Federation of Telephone Workers, who left switchboards at Prince George shortly after midnight Thursday to join with 3,800 coastal division employees who left their jobs in the Lower Mainland Monday.

Other points in the province quickly followed suit, and a statement issued shortly before 8 a.m. today said pickets were appearing before all company premises "throughout the province. The company said 50 supervisory personnel were sent by aircraft to interior points today to assist in maintaining service. About 200 management personnel had been sent to the area earlier.

Duels Rage Across Mid-East Both On Land And In Air

By REUTERS

Egyptian and Israeli guns exchanged intermittent fire across the Suez Canal through the night.

More shooting was reported from the Jordan River valley and a town on the west bank of the river was under curfew after a grenade blast in a military headquarters.

Artillery duels raged along an 80-mile front at the canal Thursday and there were two dog-fights between Egyptian and Israeli fighter planes, plus Israeli air strikes into Jordan.

Two Israeli soldiers were wounded by Egyptian fire at the canal during the night, an Israeli Army spokesman reported. He said Egyptian fire, concentrated in the Kantara sector, continued intermittently through the night and was returned by Israeli forces.

A military spokesman in Amman meanwhile reported two Jordanian soldiers killed in a 30-minute fire fight in the northern Jordan valley during the night.

CURFEW IMPOSED

Israeli military officials in Nablus, an Arab town captured from Jordan in June, 1967, imposed a curfew on the town.

At the United Nations in New York, meanwhile, western diplomats expressed fear that an urgent meeting of the Security Council called by Jordan could turn into a full-scale debate on the Middle East and jeopardize current Big Four talks to achieve a peace settlement.

Spain Seals Gibraltar Route And Receives British Blast

LONDON (CP) — Britain accused Spain today of flouting accepted standards of international behavior by cutting Gibraltar's sea links with Spanish territory.

Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart summoned the Spanish ambassador, the Marquis of Santa Cruz, and warned him that neither the people of Gibraltar nor the British government will yield to what he called pressure tactics.

Stewart urged the Spanish government to "take the first steps" toward restoring a normal situation between the dispute British colony and Spanish territory, and thus clear the way for a new attempt at conciliation.

RCMP Now All Of A Glow At Kind Words From PM

The RCMP glowed Thursday at Prime Minister Trudeau's complimentary remarks about the force as he rejected a royal commission proposal that responsibility for security operations be taken from the Mounties. RCMP Commissioner Malcolm Lindsay said in a prepared statement he is pleased the royal commission had found so little, in a lengthy inquiry, upon which to criticize the force. "Except for some minor points raised in the limited area of security screening, our general effectiveness has not been questioned," he said.

Christine Keeler, whose night life rattled Harold Macmillan's Conservative government six years ago, is about to tell all—again. Now 27, the girl who disappeared with British War Minister John D. Profumo and at the same time kept contact with the Soviet naval attaché, has typed her autobiography of those hectic times. The prospect is pleasing to publishers who reported bidding for the 70,000-word opus. There may be considerably less joy among those who would like to forget.

Mines Minister Frank Richter said in Victoria Thursday the provincial government does not plan to take any action in the mine cave-in at Natal, B.C. last week that killed three coal miners. He said that although a team of government mine inspectors has not yet filed a report to him, it was his understanding that the cave-in was purely accidental.

Maxwell Mackenzie, chairman of the royal commission on security, said Thursday he is "well satisfied" with the reception the government has given the report of the three-man commission.

Cmdr. M. Scott Carpenter, one of the seven original U.S. astronauts, will retire July 1 after completing 20 years of navy service. Carpenter, the only man to become both a space flyer and a beneath-the-sea aquanaut, will work in the oceanographic field after his retirement from the navy, the defence department said in Washington Thursday.

Dennis Butcher, 18, and Mark Kowall, 19, pleaded guilty June 18 to charges of robbery, possession of a carbon dioxide pellet pistol and three counts of possession of a sawed-off shotgun. They obtained $9,156 in the holdup of a National Trust Co. branch in Vancouver. They were arrested the same day and the money was recovered.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson told the Law Society of British Columbia today in Prince George that lawyers must bear the brunt of responsibility for lengthy delays in adjudication of criminal and civil court cases. Mr. Peterson, speaking to the opening session of the society's annual meeting here, urged lawyers to review their own "obsolete practices."

Government House Leader Donald S. MacDonald confirmed Thursday in Ottawa what MPs have been suspecting all week: The Commons will sit again next week. Hopes of rising for the summer today were dashed by a dispute over a new government formula for allocating debating time in the Commons. Former prime minister John Diefenbaker requested assurance that the Commons will respect the Dominion Day holiday next Tuesday and Mr. Macdonald gave it.

Portraits of Georges Vanier, the late governor-general of Canada, and Mme. Vanier have been completed and will be presented to the Vanier Institute of the Family in Ottawa this fall. The portraits were commissioned by the institute's first president, Dr. Wilder Penfield of Montreal, and were painted by Philip Azis of London, Ont.

A British Labor party district was won by a Liberal party candidate Thursday night in a parliamentary byelection in Britain's smallest constituency. Liberal Wallace Lawler, a municipal council member, polled 5,104 votes to give the Liberal party its 13th member of the House of Commons as he won the Birmingham suburban seat of Ladywood.

Privacy Invasion 'A Threat'

WINNIPEG (CP) — The most threatening danger to civil liberties in Canada is the official invasion of privacy by police, Pierre Berton said Thursday.

The Toronto author-broadcaster said that while the law protects private property, it doesn't prevent "electronic penetration of our minds."

"The police say that they have to fight fire with fire," he said. "I don't think that's a good argument. Just because criminals use torture doesn't mean we want the police to."

Mr. Berton said the Canadian Civil Liberties Association recommends the banning of all electronic eavesdropping devices except in cases of espionage by a foreign power or threat against life.

Even in the special cases, he said, rigid legal precautions are necessary before the use of such devices is permitted.

Mr. Berton was addressing a public meeting here to recruit membership for a Manitoba branch of the Civil Liberties Association. The branch was formed earlier in the day when the Manitoba Human Rights Association voted to join the national association.

At the same meeting, the president of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police, Chris Einfeld, chief of suburban East Kildonan police here, came in for criticism.

A. Alan Borovoy, general counsel of the civil liberties association said remarks by Chief Einfeld earlier this week in Windsor, were "superficially fatuous."

The chief had told the Ontario Association of Police Chiefs that experts in social work, psychology and probation, among others, were wasting their time working to rehabilitate criminals.

These "so-called experts," the chief had said, "should spend their time helping victims of crime, not criminals."

Said Mr. Borovoy: "So long as statements of that kind continue to emanate from people in high places, we will have problems in civil liberties and human rights."

Commonwealth Studies Sanctions On Rhodesia

LONDON (CP) — The Commonwealth decided today to establish a special seven-country working party to review existing sanctions against Rhodesia and to decide whether additional ones should be proposed.

Canada will be a member of that party along with Kenya, Zambia, Britain, India, Pakistan and Jamaica. A representative of Arnold Smith, Commonwealth secretary-general, will be included.

This special group was instructed by the Commonwealth sanctions committee to start work urgently and report back to the committee as soon as possible.

Informants said that among additional measures which will be studied will be the possibility of blocking mail and all other forms of communications to and from Rhodesia.

The decision to set up a working party was reached by the sanctions committee today—its first meeting in seven months. All Commonwealth representatives were there.

The sanctions committee condemned Ian Smith's determination to block majority rule in Rhodesia and his referendum on this policy in which only 65,000 Rhodesians were entitled to vote out of a total population of 250,000 whites and 4,000,000 non-whites.

Committee members said in a communique they are determined to reverse Smith's policies, no matter how long it took. They criticized South Africa and Portugal for continuing to do business with Rhodesia, in breach of their United Nations obligations.

Other unidentified countries also were criticized for being lax in blocking trade with Rhodesia, thereby allowing Rhodesia to earn more than $100,000,000 in foreign trade in 1968.

While these countries were not mentioned in the communique, informants said the principal ones criticized were Japan, Italy, France and West Germany—in addition to South Africa and Portugal.

Informants stressed that in these cases, it may not have been government policy to allow trade with Rhodesia but that somehow domestic traders were able to conduct business with the white regime in spite of the sanctions. There have been numerous breaches reported by a UN Security Council watchdog committee.

Lawyers Plug Legal Aid

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) —The Law Society of British Columbia gave unanimous approval Thursday to a comprehensive legal aid scheme that could cost taxpayers more than $1,500,000 annually if accepted by the provincial government.

About 200 delegates to the society's two day annual meeting here voted to accept a report on the subject prepared by lawyer K. E. Meredith of Vancouver, chairman of the group's legal aid committee.

However, implementation of the plan is in doubt. Society members said they have been told privately by officials of the attorney-general's department that the government is not considering any major changes in the existing voluntary system.

Mr. Meredith described that system as "totally inadequate." He said in an interview that his plan unites some aspects of the public defender system with referral of legal aid cases to qualified lawyers.

The 51-page report features four main recommendations:

—Incorporation of a "legal aid society" and transfer of legal aid responsibilities to it from the law society;

—Establishment of a legal aid office in Vancouver for administration of legal aid in both criminal and civil cases and appointment of an administrator to handle the scheme on a province-wide basis;

—An interim budget for the plan will be prepared for presentation to the government with a request for funds;

—Negotiation of a new fee schedule for lawyers handling legal aid cases, a major bone of contention with lawyers in B.C.

"It's impossible to accurately estimate the cost of this comprehensive program," Mr. Meredith said in presenting his report.

"The demand for legal aid might be three times as great as it is now. It could cost $1,000,000 in the first year of operation or it could go to $1,500,000," he said.

The province's present legal aid program was introduced 17 years ago for civil actions and six years ago, legal aid for criminal cases began.

THIRD HEAD PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — Mrs. R. T. Mitchell has become the third generation of women in her family to head the local chapter of the Order of the Royal Purple. Mrs. Chuck Morris, Mrs. Mitchell's mother, an earlier honored royal lady, was on hand for the installation ceremony.

EARLY EDUCATION VANCOUVER (CP) — Consumer education should begin at the elementary school level, says Jean Gillon, vice-president of the Consumers' Association of Canada. The program should start at an age when they are receiving allowances so they would be taught "how to spend their money and what to look for in purchases."

Thank You, Kelowna Fire Brigade!

We, the Management and Staff members of D. J. Kerr Auto Body Shop, wish to express our heartfelt appreciation to the Kelowna Fire Brigade for its prompt response and work at our recent fire. Our smoke-filled building was entered by the firemen with no thought of their own safety, though fully aware of the danger that oxygen and acetylene tanks, barrels of thinner and paint containers might explode at any second. Had it not been for this courageous action, we would have lost our entire building and our business. To these men, our indebtedness is beyond measure.

Progress Card May Be In Use For Next Term

An experimental report card that will enable parents to better evaluate the progress, or lack of it, of their children may be in use in Kelowna schools next term.

School trustees district 23 (Kelowna) voted approval for the use of the card which is more complex than standard provincial department of education reports in use in most schools throughout the province.

The new card provides more space for remarks by teachers on the individual performance of students and provides an appointment book to set up parent-teacher interviews.

"If something is written I believe that the parent will get a better idea of how his child is doing in school," said Trustee

C. D. Buckland, who moved the board authorize use of the card. Principals will have the final say if their schools will adopt the new card or remain with the standard department form.

The board also gave its endorsement to a request for support from the North Okanagan Association For Assisting the Handicapped, who are preparing a brief to present to the provincial government.

The recently formed body felt the brief would carry more weight if submissions were made from both ends of the Valley.

The association is appealing to local agencies to submit to the brief which will be aimed at obtaining more aid for the physically, mentally and socially handicapped.

May Need More Money

In other board business trustees learned that some shortages might exist in finances for the four-room Mountain Avenue school which will be put out to tender soon.

Building committee chairman T. R. Carter told the board a small shortage may exist and the board might be required to go back to the provincial government for more funds.

Tenders will be called as soon as permission is received from Victoria.

Trustee Carter also reported that municipality of Peachland had granted domestic water services to the new school site there.

The building and maintenance crews are continuing to work through the summer slack period and will be making repairs and renovations to several schools as well as moving four portable units to Rutland.

Trustees turned down a request by a local elementary school principal for remuneration for volunteer "teacher aides" who have been working in local schools.

Trustees felt that it was not the time to pay voluntary assistants but letters of appreciation for past services would be sent.

Paint, Sew Or Just Relax People Involved Plan 'Be-In'

Will you be at the "be-in" at Kelowna city park Sunday?

People involved, the mercurial group of teen-agers making themselves heard around the community recently, will hold their get-together near the Jubilee Bowl Sunday from 4 p.m. to midnight.

There will be paint, music, clay and fresh air enough for everyone as the teen-agers set about their entertainment. You can paint on newsprint, model clay or help the People Involved sew cushions for their quarters. Or you can square dance, bring your knitting or just lie on the grass.

That's how the "be-in" operates: just be there.

"When they had square dancing in the park, even we took part in it," a People Involved said. "We're hoping to have a lot of people, of all ages, join us: these things just mushroom once they get started."

Meanwhile, People Involved are still looking for a summer drop-in centre. Promised the curling rink, the teen-agers have been told they must have adult sponsors present at all times. They haven't found any yet.

"The be-in is partly to see if we can do our thing outdoors," the spokesman said today. "We sort of hate to be so place-oriented."

SEEN and HEARD

Virginia Sukow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Sukow, Kelowna, was among 216 receiving degrees at Walla Walla College commencement exercises, June 1. The graduate, a nursing major, received the B.S. degree from the church-related, liberal arts college located in South-eastern Washington.

A letter was read from Mayor R. F. Parkinson at the Peachland Municipal council meeting Wednesday asking for the council's endorsement of a resolution to have the area south of Squally point on the east side of Okanagan Lake classified as a provincial park site. The area designated would take in Okanagan mountain, Wild Horse Canyon and all lake frontage at this point. Peachland council was in favor of the endorsement, as are a number of groups in the Valley.

How good is your memory? When you arose six months ago today in Kelowna the temperature was a "refreshing" 21 degrees below zero. If you lived in Okanagan Mission you were even cooler, at minus 27 and in Vernon the mercury plunged to -33. Some people would like a bit of that cool these days, but at that time they couldn't wait for summer.

"Wake up," charges a downtown drycleaner's sign. "It's later now than it's ever been before." This round-about piece of logic is the latest in a series of humorous signs one of the firm's employees seems to be dreaming up.

A tongue-in-cheek question was raised Thursday by chamber of commerce director Syd Hodge, speaking about Hiram Walker and Sons Ltd. construction of a $30,000,000 distillery at Winfield. "I wonder," he said to the directors, "if Winfield will change its name to Hiramfield?" He was referring to the Ontario town of Walkerville, where Hiram Walker has his parent distillery.

Frank Addison, representing tourist region C of Okanagan Similkameen, will be attending the British Columbia Festival of Sports at Vancouver next May.

The inclement weather did nothing to dampen the interest of proud little league parents, who sat through a partial drizzle Wednesday to watch the conclusion of the best of three finals to spur their favorite "sluggers" on to victory or lend moral support to the vanquished. Wet or dry, the gleaming trophies which sat out the rain in the open with the crowd, were coveted prizes to Bridge Service league winners. There should have been special awards to the "soggy" parents too.

Always optimists about the weather, some local residents just can't believe it will rain. Several were in for a sad awakening today when they checked in their cars. At least two residential area vehicles sat all night in the drizzle with windows open, and one sports car, with top down, was sitting with an inch of water on the floor and soggy upholstery.

THEY'LL SHAKE YOUR HAND

City To Have Greeters

Organization work is expected to begin immediately on a greeters' group for Kelowna, to be sanctioned or sponsored by the Kelowna Chamber of Commerce.

Ernie Cowan, the chamber's visitor and convention director, reported Thursday his latest idea on forming some sort of welcoming and promotional group here.

The greeters' group, which would be a miniature start to the more expensive Apparian-type promotional group, will be made up of "people who are interested who know how to talk to people," Mr. Cowan said. He has been studying this type promotion for some time.

They wouldn't have to be burdened with a lot of money;

these people would be good glad-handers and that's it." The men in the group would meet about once a week for informal coffee, inviting any newcomers to the city, or any businessman who was renovating or expanding.

Mr. Cowan outlined several roles the greeters could perform, including shaking hands at the door of conventions to welcome delegates.

The organization, which must be formed slowly and carefully, would not be ready in time for this year's Regatta, he added.

The chamber executive also discussed another group the city needs — a downtown businessmen's association.

The suggestion resulted from the visit last week of King

One's A Pet, Two's A Herd But All Must Be Licensed

Fur bearing critters, pets or not, must be licensed, a former Kelowna area chinchilla farmer discovered today when he appeared before magistrate D. M. White.

Warren Shepherd, whose chinchilla enterprise was wiped out by mass death in his herd, had failed to re-licence the 10 remaining animals as they were "pets," of his ward.

"I was not aware that a 10-year-old boy was required to have a licence for pets in his basement," Mr. Shepherd told the court.

Magistrate White told the defendant that "two or more fur bearing animals constitutes a herd" under the licensing act.

Mr. Shepherd was charged after he ignored two letters from the livestock commission because "he was no longer the owner of the animals."

He admitted in court that as guardian of the current owner he was probably responsible for obtaining the licence.

Due to the circumstances magistrate White imposed only a $10 minimum fine.

A similar fine was levied on

Daniel Long, charged for the same offence.

Magistrate White was not so lenient after accepting a guilty plea from Ronald Albert Tucker, Kelowna, charged with driving while under suspension.

Tucker, who has been a repeated traffic offender and was jailed previously for driving while under suspension, was sentenced to three months in jail and a fine of $250.

His licence was suspended for one year.

"I don't know what to do with a man who flaunts authority and is in contempt of court continually," Magistrate White said.

He warned the defendant that he could lose his licence for life if he continued to add to his already lengthy record of driving offences.

In other court action Nickoli Galigan, Kelowna, was fined $35 for following too closely.

Mr. Galigan, charged as a result of a rear-end collision on Lakeshore Road, June 19, told the court he was blinded by the sun.

C Of C Tries For Better Liaison But Plans No 'Pussy-Footing'

There won't be any "pussy-footing", but the Kelowna Chamber of Commerce will not put the city council on the defensive at a joint chamber-council dinner meeting planned for the near future. A list of questions — and "beefs" — from the chamber was scrapped and the meeting will take place with no agenda if the city agrees.

The chamber will "watch very closely" the future of the Okanagan Regional Industrial Development Commission, which is standing on shaky legs since the federal government announced the scrapping of the old incentives program. Reg Nourse, the chamber's industrial commissioner, made a confidential report to the chamber Thursday on the present state of ORIDCO.

The provincial government may want to "swap" the chamber of commerce's present office building on the west side of Okanagan Lake bridge for a piece of land in the area. Several weeks ago the chamber was told they may have to leave the building at any time, but a meeting in Victoria with government officials assured the chamber they would not be evicted on short notice.

A valuable piece of "free" publicity for the Okanagan was found in Vancouver last week in the guise of a television appearance by Bill Stevenson, chamber manager, and local public relations man Jack Cooper. "We made an extremely favorable and timely impression," Mr. Cooper told the executive Thursday.

Chamber membership was granted to Universal Travelers Club, represented by C. J. Howes; Commonwealth Mobile Homes Ltd., Albert DeBoer; Home Bakery, Mrs. L. Esser; The Barbershop on the Court, B. J. Smith; and Price and Markle (Kelowna) Ltd., L. Jorde.

A copy of a new visitor's guide to the Central Okanagan was presented to the chamber executive by Mr. Cooper, who has just finished preparing it. About 40,000 copies of the guide will be available soon.

FOR AQUATIC

Moss Explains Fire Insurance

That $300,000 insurance nest-egg the city is expecting from the loss of the Aquatic facilities won't exactly be Grade A large, Ald. Alan Moss told the executive committee meeting of the Kelowna International Regatta Association Thursday.

Clarifying a published report by the Courier in Tuesday's issue, Ald. Moss told the meeting the city would "not get the full amount of insurance," and that the sum agreed upon with adjusters was only an "undepreciated value" with the balance due only "after the point of rebuilding had been reached." The statement was made following a report by Hank Van Montfort, transportation and equipment chairman, on repairs to the Aquatic stage floor and ramp. Sitting in for Dick Gunoff, meeting chairman, Ted Runnalls, said the city had undertaken to repair a "good portion" of the fire ravaged facilities, and suggested Mr. Van Montfort work with city engineer, E. F. Lawrence.

EXPENSES TRIMMED

Another revelation that tied in with the Regatta association's recent $12,000 grant from the city for construction of temporary facilities for this year's event, was unveiled by Mr. Runnalls. In keeping with council's long stipulation that the association "cut back" on expenses, $5,520 was trimmed from Regatta expenditure estimates of $46,020 leaving a total expenditure figure of $40,500.

An old contentious ember that was rekindled early in the meeting by a letter from the Canadian Boating Federation received considerable verbal exercise and one defeated motion before it was finally extinguished. Tied in with discussion was another letter from APBA area representative R. M. Derriksan, pertaining to proposed payment of financial indebtedness incurred at last year's Regatta boat races. The defeated motion by Roger Tait suggested referring the matter to Okanagan Boundary MP. Bruce Howard with the complaint "the Canadian Boating Federation, after sanctioning racing at the Regatta, seems to have been influenced by the APBA to our detriment and we feel the matter deserves your attention."

Ald. Moss had a more practical explanation. "The reason they're not coming is we didn't pay up." Alice Runnalls, entertainment chairman, was all for "dropping it" or "doing something" about the problem. She felt Kelowna "would be the losers" in pursuing the matter, which also engendered "bad publicity." Reiterating, Ald. Moss said the APBA would "have to be paid" what was owed before they would "come back," and added the city would not be liable for the debt.

MOTION PASSED

A motion by Roger Tait thanking Mr. Derriksan for his interest, was passed.

The proposed Regatta parade route got its share of agenda discussion following a hopeful bid for suggestions by parades and bands chairman, Ron Saunders, who reported 17 groups already lined up for Regatta festivities. His main concern revolved around possible changing of the parade route for a longer march so that visiting bands "won't have a let-down to a big build-up. A proper "marshalling" area was also a big problem, he added.

"Timing" was considered the biggest problem by Pat Moss, who thought one and a half hours of marching time sufficient. A short route, persisted Mr. Saunders, would not give bands enough "display" time. Mr. Moss's view on timing found support from Roger Tait, who thought bands didn't need "a long parade route."

Beauty Block Winner

The 1200 block of Belaire Avenue is the June winner of the current Kiwanis club beauty block contest, according to competition chairman, Jack Pritchard.

Four "block" winners will qualify for final judging at that time under the adjudicating eyes of Geoff Cottle and Ald. Hilbert Roth. The final winner will receive a commemorative plaque, with each resident being the recipient of a memento of recognition. Selection of block candidates is being conducted by Kiwanis members, Norm Williams, Terry Bennett, Fred Williams, Ev Greenaway and Don Mackinnon, who will be inspecting likely thoroughfares each month until final judging in September.

Special mention this month includes the west side of the 2400 block of Taylor Crescent, the north side of the 400 block of Royal Avenue, the east side of the 1800 block of Maple Street, both sides of the 700 block of Saucier Avenue, the east side of the 1900 block of Bow Street, the north side of 1200 block of Centennial Crescent, the east side of the 1400 block of Flemish Street and the 700 block of Richter Street.

Also deserving of mention, according to judges, is the neatness of the grounds surrounding the Rotary homes block, and the grounds of three apartment buildings on the east side of Kelglen Crescent.

All judging is based purely on unprofessional residential grooming, and confined to one side of a block only, exclusive of backyard neatness.

Thieves Hit Six Locations

Safecrackers and smash and grab thieves struck in Kelowna during the night raiding six locations including a beauty salon, service station and meat market.

Thieves used a cutting torch to crack the safe of Pioneer Meat Packers, on McCurdy Road, but RCMP report that little cash was inside at the time.

A smash and grab thief stole a wig valued at $80 from the Charm Beauty Salon on Pandosy. A police patrol discovered the theft about 5:15 a.m. today.

Few details are available in four other break-ins, all in the Pandosy and KLO Road areas, but police said "very little was stolen."

Hiram Walker Has Own Flag Lost For More Than 20 Years

A new flag goes up the pole in the Winfield area today—the Hiram Walker and Sons Symbol, probably the only beverage company in Canada with its own flag.

Older than the flags of more than 20 nations, the 59-year-old Walker banner was recently rediscovered after being lost for more than 20 years. It is reputed to have been designed by Hiram Walker himself, and now flies on top of the company's administration building at Walkerville, Ont.

The flag will be raised at the 160-acre Winfield site to mark the beginning of construction on a $30,000,000 distillery there, the second largest in Canada.

The flag is crimson with a blue oval in the centre of the field bearing the Hiram Walker trademark, surrounded by closed laurel wreath with undulating streamers running from the centred oval.

$1,000-REGATTA-SMILES

Those beaming smiles are worth $1,000 to the Kelowna International Regatta Association, which is presented with a cheque in that amount by Rolf Macerwe, left, local representative of Gesteiner Canada Ltd. Regatta treasurer,

Ted Runnalls, right, displays welcome contribution which will be used to provide fireworks as well as help offset loss of the Aquatic facilities.

More Important Dangers Than Cigarette Smoking

The other day two doctors, one an American and the other Swedish, struck a new note in the anti-cigarette opera in Ottawa, by stating flatly there was no real proof that tobacco causes lung cancer or shortens life.

One of them was Dr. William Ober, associate professor of pathology at New York Medical College, who said that millions of dollars spent on experiments all come to nothing. "There is no proof whatsoever," he contended, "that tobacco in moderation is harmful to health."

Quite as emphatic was Dr. Rune Cederlof, associate professor at the National Institute of Public Health in Stockholm. He described as "non-sense" charges that cigarette smoking reduces life expectancy.

All this will meet a violent rebuff in the Commons health committee, as the controversy goes on; the real fight, of course, is, and should be, against excessive smoking. Here is the paradox. Evidence of damage to lungs and arteries from heavy smoking of cigarettes is too impressive to ignore—even if certain individuals are not apparently affected at all.

Far more people die from overeating than from oversmoking or from immoderate drinking. Common sense goes out the window on this one, as it does in most controversies of this kind.

Tobacco, cholesterol and latterly, the pill make much more lively reading than an increasing urgent need to face up to common sense in protecting health.

It is one thing to get excited about cigarettes; it is far more dangerous to glance only casually—especially in the high-wrought city way of life in which most Canadians are now caught—at graver risks. It is well known many children have inadequate nutrition, and not only because of poverty; there is a shocking lack of understanding of a balanced diet.

Intelligently guided exercise—who thinks of that? Fat, in itself, is a major hazard. Sleep and relaxation may be ancient stuff, but they are a great medicine from nature. Defy these rules and the bill comes in. It is a big one.

The process of education in pointing out, especially to the young, the risks in heavy smoking, will go on, and should go on. So should education in far more important matters than smoking, even if they are less sensational at the moment than the "coffin nail" of the Victorian era.

Forest Fire Losses Up

When it thunders at night, forestry officials across Canada wake up. It's the lightning that worries them.

In the backs of their minds, they see the white slivers darting through the black night and cracking the crust of the earth.

Lightning means an electrical current—and that means fire.

The forestry officials see a smouldering in the tinder-dry club moss, leaves and needles at the base of a stump. They react quickly. Crack teams of fire-fighters on alert as fleets of aircraft prepare to search for smoke.

In a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press, provincial forestry officials admitted that man's cigarette butts or embers from a live campfire are still the No. 1 cause of forest fires in Canada. Lightning is No. 2, but in many ways more dangerous.

Forest fires destroy millions of board feet of lumber and thousands of tons of pulp. Fire also stampedes the wildlife, and many of the young are not strong enough to escape; birds' lungs fill with smoke and they die, and the surfaces of lakes and rivers are choked by the smoke and fish die because the water can't get enough oxygen.

The federal resources department reports that from April 1, 1968, to

Nov. 31, 1968, there were 6,933 forest fires in Canada and 2,051,000 acres of land and timber destroyed.

British Columbia, with its stands of giant Douglas fir, spruce, hemlock, pine, cedar and balsam, had a large number of fires in 1968 but were able to control the loss to 33,880 acres.

B.C. has its hands full already this year with more than 530 fires since May 1. Losses, according to the B.C. forest services, have been more than $250,000 compared with $65,700 in the same period last year.

Largest fire to date in B.C. was near Cluculz Lake in the Prince George area where 3,000 acres went up in smoke.

B.C. has 750 trained forest protection personnel, many organized in crack crews which can be airlifted within hours to remote trouble spots.

The government is also able to recruit firefighters and equipment from logging camps if fires become a serious threat.

Forest fire prevention campaigns are carried out in schools and industry.

The forest service reports that during the last 10 years 2,500,000 acres of timber land have been burned. This represented 2,500,000,000 board feet of lumber—enough to build approximately 250,000 two-bedroom homes.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

PARENTS CHIDED

Sir: It seems a sad state of affairs when a farmer has to write a letter to the editor of a paper to remind parents to teach their children not to steal. To the parents of the four or five children who brought their children to a cherry orchard in the city and dropped them off to steal fruit, tell me what will your excuse be when they end up at the police station and leave with a lifetime record?

Will you then be able to live with your conscience knowing that you taught them this habit. Why do you parents feel it is alright to steal fruit from the farmer yet if we came into your yard and took your garden hose or any little gadget you would charge us immediately? How many of you people would go into a store and shoplift? Well let me answer for you, I think you all would because it all amounts to the same thing.

We have received complete co-operation from the RCMP. These men have a big job on their hands and should not have this extra burden. The police are doing a wonderful job of controlling and believe me they have more to do than this for they are already overloaded with work. At this rate we will need more police officers which will in turn be an addition to the already heavy burden of taxes. Have your choice good citizens.

I know you are saying to yourself right now, what are a few cherries or what are a few apples or grapes? Well, people, get it through your thick skulls all these "few" quickly add up to a ton. We asked one boy if he wanted cherries so bad why didn't he buy them? His reply was that they cost too much. I wonder where these boys and girls get the idea it is cheaper to steal? Do you value your reputation so little?

Now on the other side of the coin if they cost so much to buy why don't you think of how much they cost to grow. The birds get the cherries from the top, the people from the bottom and the farmer is left with his tax bill, irrigation bill, spray bill, and hours of hard work without any return on his money.

How many parents or children would work under this conditions? Maybe if we belonged to a union we could go on strike until the stealing stopped, or get paid overtime to stay all night to guard, but such is not the case with the farmer.

Parents do you care so little for your children that you are willing to run the risk of them eating fruit sprayed with deadly poisons and get terribly ill or perhaps lose a life just for the sake of saving a few cents by allowing them to steal rather than buy them some fruit. It is refreshing to know that some parents care enough that one such parent upon learning that his son was in the orchard and took a couple of cherries, sent his child to the farmer to put in a few hours work to pay for his deed.

Wouldn't this be a wonderful place to live if all parents carried so much and wouldn't our youth of today carry a tremendous set of values with them into their adult life.

To you people who are poor and maybe can't afford to buy fruit for your children, phone or see a farmer and I'm sure he will be happy to give you some and you will be saved from being branded as a thief.

In closing I ask you to read this letter over and over until you get the full meaning of it. You will do one of two things, go on as before, this time knowing you are stealing or trying to correct your ways. In the meantime I have a clear conscience knowing I gave you a fair warning before I caught you and laid a charge at the police station.

Signed
A HOSTILE FARMER

BAD MIXTURE

Sir: I would like to write my opinion about what Chief Pettman said in Monday's paper in letters to the Courier printed.

Children and matches don't mix well. Chief. This in itself is true, but why single out the children from the eight grass fires. Only two were started by children, yet this is the topic. The other 75 per cent is hardly mentioned anymore. Then he goes on to blame children again for the Aquatic fire. This is not proven and may be very well set by someone else.

I am not pointing at anyone

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Baldness Not Funny

For This Girl Of 12

By DR. GEORGE THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

I have a daughter, 12, who is completely bald and has no eyebrows or eyelashes. She began losing her hair when she was 8.

After hospitalization and medical advice, we were told this is an emotional problem. We have been taking her to a child psychiatrist for 18 months but so far no regrowth of hair.

I also have twin daughters, 9, and the doctor told us the problem stems from when the twins were babies and the older girl felt she was rejected and not loved.

Will her hair and lashes grow back? Should we continue the psychiatry? It is expensive. Do you know of this happening to any other children? Is it common?—Mrs. L.S.

It is not common, but it happens. Adults, too, can lose hair in spots (alopecia areata) or entirely (alopecia universalis) following an emotional upset.

When the baldness is spotty, regrowth usually occurs, particularly if a mild sedative is used to allay tension. But when there is total hair loss, the prospects of regrowth, I am sorry to say, are not good. Nor is medical treatment likely to help. I take it for granted that the "little girl's examination" included tests which did not disclose any glandular condition.

Since you have seen no results after 18 months of psychiatry and the expense is becoming a burden, I think you should discuss this aspect frankly with both the psychiatrist and your regular physician, and inquire as to the need for continuing this treatment.

They may—depending on the circumstances—suggest that further psychiatric treatment is advisable, quite aside from the hair problem. Or they may not. That's why I say discuss it with them.

In any event, don't show your concern about your daughter to her or to others. Undoubtedly you have a hair piece for her. Perhaps just letting the hair problem ride now will be the best policy. She has her prepubertal years ahead of her, and there may be some hair growth at that time. At least I hope so.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have written twice now asking about white spots or blotches on the skin. Is this something you know very little about?—P.E.T.

You presumably refer to vitiligo, or loss of coloring in the skin. It's something nobody knows much about. Occasionally it responds to treatment by a dermatologist, but more often it doesn't, and using cosmetics is then the best—or only—answer. It isn't dangerous; just unsightly.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What happens when the spleen is removed after an accident?—Mrs. C.D.

Nothing, as a rule. The spleen is a storage place for certain blood cells—creates new ones, disposes of old ones. But all of these services are performed also by other organs, so it is no disaster when the spleen has to be removed. Usual reason for removal is that it has been ruptured and is bleeding, and since it is very soft tissue, it is virtually impossible to repair it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have had quite a siege of shingles for several months and no relief from pain. After many pain pills, I wonder if you could advise me on "blocking of the nerves." I have heard that it may help. Would it be safe?—Mrs. B.B.M.

The pain of shingles—in the average case—normally subsides in two to four weeks, and it is unusual for it to persist for months. Yes, a nerve block can be performed if necessary.

Beery Battle Brews

BONN (Reuters) — A battle is brewing between West German beer-makers and the European Common Market over proposed measures which the Germans say will dilute the qualities of the "sacred suds."

Since the early 14th century German brewers have had to follow strict rules in making beer. In the 15th century, Nuernberg and Munich brewers swore a solemn oath that barley malt, hops and water would be the only ingredients allowed.

Now the Common Market commission in Brussels wants to remove trading restrictions in the beer market and "Europeanize" beer by laying down general standards which will permit the use of chemicals and artificial sweeteners.

The result is indignation among West Germany's 33,000,000 regular beer drinkers—78 per cent of the population over the age of 16.

The Common Market's crime against beer, as German brewers see it, lies in the united aristocratic Prussians and bawdy Bavarians in common cause, and prompted questions in Parliament.

What, Prince Constantine of Bavaria demanded to know, does the health minister intend to do to save "the standard of beer purity which has existed for centuries and on which the worldwide reputation of Bavarian and German beer exists."

The Brussels commission argues that beer with chemical additives is less likely to spoil in the barrel and also that beer made with raw materials other than barley is cheaper to produce.

The Germans know all this but "the question is whether we can afford to keep up our purity standard," said Peter Stille, director of the West German Brewers' Federation. He said West Germany produces two-thirds of all the beer consumed in Common Market countries.

BIBLE BRIEF

"So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom."—Psalms 90:12.

OTTAWA REPORT

Ottawa Invades Provincial Rights

By PATRICK NICHOLSON

As predicted in this column many weeks ago, Premier John Roberts has announced that Ontario will shortly join the federal medicare plan. This element of Ottawa's blackmail in this invasion of provincial rights made it economically impossible—as Ottawa Report pointed out—for any province to remain outside.

The entry of Ontario on Oct. 1 as the seventh province to join medicare will bring a bonanza to British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Nova Scotia and the other provinces already participating. B.C. will receive an extra $5,200,000 in a full year as federal subsidy for medicare; Saskatchewan will receive an extra $2,500,000 and Nova Scotia will receive an extra $2,000,000. This is because Ottawa pays to each participating province for each beneficiary half the average cost per head of all participating provinces; the advent of Ontario, with its high cost and big population, will raise that average by over $5 a person.

This is an unofficial calculation based on my own figures. As was mentioned in an earlier column, Ottawa has kept tight wraps on its own estimates; but by digging carefully in various Ottawa statistical mines, I was able to compile figures which are very close to the official ones. These show that the national average cost of medicare today would be $1.04 per person. In individual provinces, this would range from a high of $7.70 in B.C. and $5.50 in Ontario, through $4.90 in Saskatchewan and $3.30 in Nova Scotia, to a low of $1.80 in Newfoundland.

ESTIMATE CLOSE

Thus I calculated that Ontario would receive $173,900,000 in federal subsidy for a full year. Premier Roberts announces his estimate as $176,000,000, which confirms the comparative accuracy of my sources.

Despite the wide disparity between the average cost per person in different provinces, Ottawa's subsidy will be based not on half the cost in each province, but on half the national average. My figures clearly illustrate the inequity in this, since each Ontarian will be subsidised only $23.52 by Ottawa against a cost of $56.50, yet each Newfoundland will also be subsidised $23.52 by Ottawa although the total cost of medicare there is estimated at only $19.80 per person.

As a spokesman for the Ontario government said—and no doubt the other "have" provinces would agree—there is complete willingness to assist the "have-not" provinces; but this should be done by open subsidies rather than by concealed grants such as in this medicare formula.

WHO REALLY PAYS?

It sounds attractive to any province to be offered a subsidy from Ottawa towards medicare costs. But the money which Ottawa will distribute has to come from somewhere, and of course it comes from the taxpayers in the various provinces. As usual, the burden falls heaviest on Ontario. Of the average tax dollar collected by Ottawa, 49½ cents is paid by Ontario, 16½ cents by Quebec, 12½ cents by B.C., seven cents by Alberta, 4 cents by Saskatchewan, two and a half cents by Nova Scotia, and less than a quarter cent by P.E.I. Thus, for example, of the $176,000,000 which Premier Roberts expects to receive from Ottawa as a contribution towards the costs of medicare in Ontario, no less than $87,120,000 will have been paid by Ontarians in the form of federal taxes.

It would be an eye-opening exercise to calculate the cost to the taxpayers of collecting those $87,000,000 from Ontarians and then repaying them. How many jobs are created in Ottawa, how many empires are erected in Ottawa, to effect this payment and repayment?

Every Canadian feels satisfaction that doctor's care is being made available to all, regardless of ability to pay. But very few Canadians were not already covered by some form of adequate medical insurance; this figure is put at five per cent in Ontario. To enforce a national plan on all Canadians to cover those few is like hiring a mechanical shovel to put sugar in your coffee. It took a category of brains like Lester Pearson's liberal government to figure that one out.

CANADA'S STORY

Prince Edward Stopped Rioting In Quebec

By BOB BOWMAN

Today's story and tomorrow's will be about two sons of King George III who were colorful figures in Canadian history. They were Edward, Duke of Kent, the father of Queen Victoria, and Prince William who became King William IV.

Edward was trained in Germany for the army, and was a Prussian-type officer. After a turbulent career at Gibraltar where he got into debt through gambling, he was posted to Quebec as commander of the garrison. He was accompanied by Alphonse Therese Julie de Montgenet de St. Laurent, Barons de Fortissou. She had left her husband in Europe, lived with Edward at Quebec and later at Halifax, and they had two sons. One of them took the name Robert Wood and became a lumber merchant in Quebec. The other went to Martinique and was known as Jean de Mestre.

Fortunately Edward could shorten the long name of his companion to "Julie" and they enjoyed life in Quebec and Halifax. They took their place in society and made lasting friendships, especially at Quebec. Edward, although a strict disciplinarian with his troops, was active in community developments, and was even known to help pass buckets of water when there were fires.

He did everything possible to try to create better friendship and understanding between French and English-speaking Canadians. There was a riot at Charlesbourg on June 27, 1792, and Edward stopped it by standing on a chair and shouting in his military voice "Let me hear no more of these odious distinctions between French and English. You are all His Britannic Majesty's beloved Canadian subjects." That wouldn't go over so well today, but it stopped the riot at Charlesbourg!

Edward had lots of good ideas. One of them was a signal system between Halifax and Quebec, from mountain to mountain, but fog over the Bay of Fundy made it unreliable. However, traces of the towers still remain.

Edward and Julie could not get married because she was a commoner, and eventually they were forced to separate so he could marry Victoria. Mary Louisa, widow of Prince Charles of Leiningen. They had a daughter who became Queen Victoria.

OTHER EVENTS ON JUNE 27: 1689—Canadians and Indians massacred D'over, New Hampshire.

1762—Compte de d'Haussonville captured St. John's, Newfoundland.

1772—Matthew Cocking left Hudson Bay for Saskatchewan River.

1778—Peter Pond discovered Lake Athabasca.

1825—Canada Land Company formed to develop Lake Huron area.

1858—Steamer "Republic" arrived at Esquimalt with 800 gold prospectors from San Francisco.

1922—Jock Palmer tried to fly airmail from Lethbridge to Ottawa but failed.

1940—Liberals won general election with 193 seats, Conservatives 41.

TODAY in HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

June 27, 1969 . . .

Canada's Liberal government rode back into power 20 years ago today—in 1949—in an unprecedented Atlantic-to-Pacific sweep to repair the Liberals' string of election victories which began in 1935. The Liberals took 191 seats in the 262-seat house, exceeding the previous record of 178 members in the old 245-seat house. The number of seats had been increased to take in Newfoundland and a number of new constituencies.

1849—New York - Boston telegraph was completed.

1963—President John F. Kennedy appointed Henry Cabot Lodge as U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1944—OFFICIALS at the Allied Supreme Headquarters announced that Cherbourg had fallen after a bitter house-to-house mop-up campaign. Churchill told the Commons that British, Dominion and Indian Army casualties from the time of landing in Italy to the fall of Rome totalled 73,122 killed, wounded and missing.

GETS INVOLVED

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Jeannie Campos, a 19-year-old sophomore at the University of Washington, is one of those students who likes to get involved. And she recently spent a Saturday morning raising $10 for a special education program which provides funds for disadvantaged students. Jeannie has been blind since she was seven years old.

BUTTER CHEAPER
VANCOUVER (CP) — Dean Jack Eyre, New Zealand high commissioner in Canada, complained Thursday that New Zealand dairy products are not given "satisfactory access" to Canada. He said New Zealand butter could sell here for 45 cent a pound or less, compared with 68 to 72 for Canadian butter.

She told the students that change of change sake is not always good while to stand pat also is not always good. Dependency on each other is obvious throughout school years and they are easy years for kids are more tolerant. They fight and make up, but from here on, rivalries enter the picture. "You will start to think in terms of who are with us and who are against us. You will have to choose sides. But she said people are aware of values and place high value on honesty.

"To thine own self be true, the emphasis should be on being, not doing, your greatest challenge will be to remain flexible, also man must maintain a feeling of love and warmth to each other. Without affection he becomes isolated, our society must place high priority on the value of love, and still we must be different, for without differences we would become shapeless mass."

Tennis Anyone? Could Be Call

"Tennis, anyone?" could replace Canada's traditional sports cry. "the shoots, he scores" if the Kelowna Golf and Country Club had unlimited promotional scope on the comeback sport.

As it is, they're content to try and revive the once-popular game locally with sponsorship of the Annual British Columbia Interior Tennis Championships scheduled for July 3 to 6 on club courts. Entries from all parts of the province are expected, with the major portion from Vancouver and surrounding areas.

The competition program will include men's and women's singles and doubles, as well as mixed doubles and junior veterans doubles for men 35 years and older.

As an added appetizer this year, a junior singles tournament will be held in conjunction with the championships provided enough entries are available. The club is encouraging registration from 18-year-old or under for junior boys and girls.

Entries for both events can be mailed or phoned to Claire

Irish, Hobson Road, RR4, Kelowna before deadline time Saturday.

MAN KILLED
CHEWYND (CP)—One man died and a second was injured in a two-car collision 25 miles north of this Peace River community Thursday night. Ralph Arthur McLean, 32, of Prince George was killed. Driver of the car, his name withheld, was in satisfactory condition in hospital.

LIGHTNING HITS
WEST VANCOUVER (CP)—Lightning struck a tree here Thursday night and sent a surge of power along wires that entered Donald Lee's home, blowing out windows and starting a fire in the basement. The house next door had windows blown out, and the lightning-damaged tree fell on a fire truck attending the blaze.

North Surrey Girl Marries In Rutland

White and mauve gladiolas and chrysanthemums arranged in fan-like formation and set in gold and white standards formed the background for the double-ring ceremony at the Rutland United Church June 21, at 4:30 p.m., which united in marriage Bonnie Dianne Sanderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Sanderson, North Surrey, to Robert James Adams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilkie Adams, Rutland.

The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. Howard R. Hall and the wedding music was played by Mrs. William Drinkwater.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, chose a gown of white lace with peau de sole panel, a train of lace completed the gown, which had long sleeves. Her shoulder length scalloped veil of illusion net was held in place by a circlet of white leaves and lace.

The bride carried a bouquet of two white orchids encircled by mauve carnations and white satin ribbons. For something blue the bride wore the traditional blue garter for something borrowed and something old, she carried a lace handkerchief belonging to her great grandmother, which had been carried at the weddings of her mother and grandmother.

The bride's sister, Linda Sanderson of North Surrey, was her maid of honor, while the groom's sister, Margaret Adams of Rutland, was bridesmaid.

Both attendants wore white lace pant dress suits, mauve bows formed the trimmings, the pants featured the stylish bell-bottom and the sleeves of the dresses were three-quarter length. Mauve tinted shoes and mauve head bands completed the ensembles. They carried small baskets filled with mauve carnations trimmed with white ribbons and streamers.

Douglas Connors of Rossland was the best man and John and Charles Adams, brothers of the groom, were the ushers.

For the reception, which was held in the Dillman Room at the Centennial Hall, the bride's mother received the guests wearing a nylon dress in shades of mauve and pink with white accessories. Her corsage was white orchids with mauve ribbons.

The bridegroom's mother assisted in receiving the guests, wearing a blue lace dress and a small hat of blue netting in matching tones, and her corsage was a white gardenia.

The bride's table was covered by a white cut work tablecloth which had been made by the bride's grandmother. The three-tiered wedding cake was topped with white wedding rings and doves and six mauve tapers flanked the cake.

The toast to the bride as proposed by John Clark, and was responded to by the groom. Douglas Connor proposed the toast to the bride's attendants.

Just before leaving, the bride tossed her garter, which was caught by James Byam of Cranbrook.

Later in the day the bride and groom placed the wedding bouquet on the grave of the late Norman Harms. For the honeymoon to Christina Lake, Spokane and other points, the bride wore a blue and white tulle suit with accessories of white, and a pink carnation corsage.

ANN LANDERS

Love Of Grandparents Is A Special Brand

Dear Ann Landers: We adore our four grandchildren. My husband and I have been devoted to them, especially the two little boys. Grandpa has been like a father to them. Their mother considers it a blessing since their own father was never very attentive to his young family.

Now that the children are getting more articulate it is apparent that they love Grandpa very much. Their own father has decided their love is "unhealthy" because Grandpa is getting old (he's 60) and he may die one of these days. According to their father, the children will suffer severe emotional trauma unless they diminish contact with the old gentleman. He wants to "spare them" by limiting Grandpa's visits to once every 10 days.

Is our son-in-law right? If you say so we will accept their decision—SAD

Dear Sad: You must accept their decision no matter what I say. The wishes of the parents must prevail, not those of the grandparents or of Ann Landers.

If it's my opinion you want, here it is: The love children get from a Grandpa is a special kind of love. Their father should be grateful for it. I suspect your son-in-law resents the affection his children feel for Grandpa. How unfortunate that he views Grandpa as competition instead of an added dimension in the lives of his youngsters.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been married 21 years. We have a wide circle of friends and have done a good job of raising three splendid children. I would say our marriage is better than most.

About four months ago I received three telephone calls from friends who wanted me to know they were sorry to hear that Fred and I are getting a divorce. Fred received two such calls at his place of business. Neither of us can figure out who started the story. Yesterday I received another such call. Apparently the rumor has started again. Is there any way we can trace these completely false stories? Why start them? Why?—WONDERMENT

Dear Won: Don't waste your time and energy trying to track down rumors. It's futile, unrewarding, frustrating and pointless.

Who starts them? It could be anybody. Why? Envy probably.

Dear Ann: Those parents who allowed their 15-year-old son to entertain his girl friend in his bedroom for three hours before dinner (with the door closed) and then allowed them to return to the bedroom after dinner, must be nuts.

Don't parents realize that today a 14-year-old kid knows more about sex than his parents knew at 20? When my brother was 16 he explained to Mom and Dad what homosexuals were and how they got that way. They were SHOCKED.

Tell parents to get with it, Ann. Last year two of my girl friends had abortions in Europe and one nearly died because she tried to abort herself. They were all 14 and from so-called "better families."—D. TROT

Dear Trot: I don't need to tell 'em. You did. But good. Thanks.

Dear Ann Landers: My mother was very disappointed when I married Phillip. She felt he wasn't good enough for me because his parents were foreign born and not "society."

Every morning Mother telephoned to make some cutting remark about him, such as, "Phillip's sox were baggy last night. Does he own gariera?" Or "Phillip offended Mrs. Beck because he ignored her and talked to the woman at his right all through dinner." I hate to hear the phone ring in the morning. Right now my stomach is tied up in knots. I need your advice.—Uplight

Dear Up: Tell your mother you refuse to tolerate any further criticism of your husband. If she forgets, chop her off in mid-sentence.

Put Them On Women They Come Alive

NEW YORK (AP) — Drape them anywhere but on a woman and the fall fashion creations of Greek-born designer George Stavropoulos look more like experiments in geometry than the stuff high style is made of. But put them on a woman and they come alive.

One of Stavropoulos's most complicated productions is the "puzzle pants", a one-piece affair that starts down the shoulder like a cape, then somehow turns into a jumpsuit with two flouncy skirts of chiffon. It looks and moves like a dream.

Mystery is the keynote of Stavropoulos's seamless coat—both for the way it makes a woman look and for the way it was made. The single round piece of black wool somehow sprouts a stand-up collar while swirling around into a diagonal row of buttons in the front.

However, we make things as easy as possible. By giving you complimentary cocktails in our comfortable lounge. By offering you tantalizing

Ottawa Rejects Proposal Of Civilian Police Agency

OTTAWA (CP) — A royal commission's recommendation that a civilian agency separate from the RCMP be created to deal with espionage and subversion has been rejected by the government.

Prime Minister Trudeau, tabling the report in the Commons Thursday, refused the commission's view that security screening by civilians "would be regarded with more understanding than are inquiries by police."

Mr. Trudeau, who has had the report in hand since Nov. 1, said the government has concluded that current and future security problems can best be handled by the RCMP's security and intelligence directorate. "We are keenly aware that the RCMP are one of the most honored and respected of Canadian institutions," he said, paying tribute to the force as among "the world's finest."

He said there is validity to the commission's view that differences do exist between police and security duties.

DEVELOP SECURITY WING
As a result, the government intended to see that the RCMP security wing develops as "a distinct and identifiable element" within the force, more responsive to the security requirements outlined by the commission.

The royal commission, which worked for two years under tight wraps, was formed in 1966 after the Gerda Munsinger scandal and the Victor Spencer spy case rocked Parliament.

Spencer was a Vancouver post office employee said to have been compromised by Communist agents. He was fired and refused pension but the government said it didn't have enough evidence to charge him. He died of cancer at his home.

Gerda Munsinger was a West German blonde known to U.S. security agencies before she came to Canada. Her name was linked with some members of the Diefenbaker Conservative cabinet.

The royal commission was made up of Chairman Maxwell W. Mackenzie, a Montreal businessman, and members Yves Pratte, Quebec City lawyer who now is chairman of Air Canada; and M. J. Coldwell of Ottawa, former leader of the CCF party, which was the nucleus of the current New Democratic Party. The 53,000-word report made public Thursday was sharply edited "in the interest of national security."

COMMUNISM MAIN THREAT
The commissioners said in the report, however, that they were given ample reason, in detailed estimates from the RCMP and other concerned government departments, to believe that communism and "some elements of the Quebec separatist movement" are the main current security threats to Canada.

The report said Communist subversive activity in Canada ranges from development of front organizations to attempts to subvert individuals in many areas.

"Activities in universities and trade unions appear at present to be of special significance."

Efforts were made to subvert immigrants from some Western European countries and emigrant groups from Communist countries.

There was also a very small but militant and influential Trotskyist movement in Canada.

SOME SPYS UNDETECTED
The commission felt it had received enough information about espionage to make it clear that undetected operators were at work. There was some evidence a higher priority was being placed on scientific, technological, economic and political information although military information was still important.

"The importance of Canada as a target for espionage operations should not be underrated," the commission said. "We hold U.S. and British classified information, participate in North American air defence arrangements, and in NATO, and our attitudes, policies, capabilities and intentions are in themselves of some significance."

Separatism in Quebec should be dealt with in a political rather than a security context where it operated by legal and democratic means.

"However, if there is any evidence of an intention to engage in subversive or seditious activities, or if there is any suggestion of foreign influence, it seems to us inescapable that the federal government has a clear duty to take such security measures as are necessary to protect the integrity of the federation."

"At the very least, it must take adequate steps to inform itself of any such threats, and to collect full information about the intentions and capabilities of individuals or movements whose object is to destroy the federation by subversive or seditious methods."

REDS URGE SEPARATISTS
There was "no doubt" about Communist and Trotskyist interest in the separatist movement. "It appears to us that there is in certain quarters a tendency to resort to activities that could well be regarded as seditious."

The commission says internal government security procedures now are "permissive rather than compelling" and their effectiveness is more apparent than real.

It pooh-poohs the right to privacy where security is concerned and recommends far stiffer screening of public employees. Any doubts should be resolved in favor of the state.

"We have little sympathy with the more extreme suggestions that inquiries about persons should not be undertaken because of the individual's right of privacy." Neither did the individual have a right to be told what was happening in this area.

An employee's reliability should be checked through records, written inquiries to references, employers, schools, personal inquiries to associates, neighbors and so on, and personal interview.

The commission says every public employee should be given a routine subversion check and his fingerprints checked against criminal records.

Those who are to have access to secret and confidential information should be given a more thorough check, including credit and work records.

A field investigation going back 10 years should be done on anyone who is to have access to top secret information. Checks in this area should be made at regular intervals.

CITES CONFUSION
The commission says current government practice is confused and screening minimal, often taking place after an employee has started work.

Moscow Has Many Problems With This Year's Harvest

MOSCOW (Reuters) — A disastrous winter, a late spring and chronic shortages of farm machinery have combined to plague the Kremlin with harvest-gathering problems.

Farmers have been told to make an all-out effort to gather grain and the government has called on virtually all sectors of the economy to help. The diversion of labor could cause trouble for industry.

This year's problems started with an unprecedentedly harsh winter which brought freezing temperatures and cyclone-force winds to areas of the Soviet Union normally immune from extremes of weather.

Fields were stripped of protective snow cover and young plants froze on the bare ground. Western experts estimated that 20 to 25 per cent of all winter wheat sown last fall was destroyed.

FROST IN JUNE
Chill temperatures persisted throughout the spring. Arctic winds still buffeted most of Russia's central region and frosts nipped the Moscow region in June.

DIPLOMATS WATCHING

Apollo Has Link For Them

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Apollo 11 moon landing attempt will be watched with special interest by a small group of diplomats who were mainly responsible for extending international law to the celestial bodies through the 1967 space treaty.

For them, the event will have double significance.

—It will represent the only important instance in the brief history of space law in which the diplomats moved faster than the scientists and technologists.

—It will be the first time that some of the basic provisions of the 1967 treaty actually become applicable.

Although this treaty represents a milestone in space law, it has had only limited application so far because it was designed essentially to govern the exploration of the celestial bodies.

CAN'T STAKE CLAIM

Its major contribution has been the prohibition of the orbiting or stationing of nuclear weapons in space, but its broad objective—as stated by former president Lyndon B. Johnson—was "to see to it that serious political conflicts do not arise as a result of space activities."

If astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin successfully land on the moon's surface, for example, it will be perfectly clear under the treaty that they cannot stake claim to the moon as U.S. territory.

Legally, all the celestial bodies have been internationalized and all activities on them are under international law—including the charter of the United Nations.

The treaty looks ahead to the day when traffic to the moon and beyond becomes commonplace and laws will be needed to deal with rights of access, communications and other problems which might cause friction.

BAN MILITARY BASES

Some of the terms are the treaty's prohibitions against the stationing of nuclear weapons on celestial bodies, the conduct of military manoeuvres, or the establishment of military bases.

The regulation of space traffic is becoming increasingly urgent, as orbiting satellites mount in number and elaborate space platforms are about to join them. Added to this is the problem of controlling so-called space garbage.

Another problem is the lack of comprehensive regulations in the field of space communications. Experts see the possibility of jamming, pirating of broadcast materials and other injurious uses of space unless international agreements provide for licensing and regulation.

More important for the future are broad questions of military espionage, possible conversion of space platforms into military vehicles and the definition of outer space.

Wet Weather Good For Some

By JIM TREADGOLD

THE EXTREME change in the weather is most welcome for the Forestry personnel as it has greatly lessened the fire hazard and put out the fires that were burning, but it has not been pleasant for the fishermen, nor conducive to fishing. Campfires are again in order, but even though the bush is damp make sure all fires are really out before leaving them. EVEN THOUGH the weather was damp and windy last weekend and at the first of the week the fishermen were out in numbers and success has been fair to good, but down somewhat from a week ago.

Beaver is reported as fair with a few good catches. The best flies this past few days are the Spratley, Deer Hair Nymph and Mosquito, and the best flatfish the Gold, Silver and Green Frog colors.

IN THE DEE LAKE area, Stan Wong and party reported as taking limits on 1st Fly lake and 2nd Fly on the Muddler Minnow and Red Casey flies. The fish averaged two pounds with the largest going six and a half pounds taken on 1st Fly. Also Mr. and Mrs. Anderson of Houquiam, Wash., caught 45 trout in three days on 1st Fly, with the largest being five pounds.

The Dee chain itself is producing well with fish of 10 to 15 inches. Brunette, Wilma and Alex Mountain lakes have also produced well of late.

MAURICE CHAPLIN reports Jack Pine as being steady. A new road is to be built into the lake and adjacent mineral claim right away. Scotty Angus reports that he and his sons did well last weekend at Doreen Lake and 2nd Fly lake which is accessible by road. Eric Bateson reports Loon Lake, which is close to Doreen, as also good on the fly.

NICK KRIMMER was in to report fishing as good on Postill Lake, and that a few parties have done well on Twin Lakes.

Jack Prior of the White Mountain Camp reports fishing as a bit slower on the McCulloch chain, including Brown Lake last weekend, but has picked up during the week, with a party from Omak taking some very nice trout on trolled flies. The mosquito problem has greatly lessened and the roads are very good, passable for any car to the camp.

PENNASK LAKE has been an extremely busy spot with approximately 75 boats on the lake last Saturday and Sunday, with probably a thousand fish taken on the weekend.

The fishing pressure there has the Game Branch a little worried as this lake is one of the mainstays in the egg collection program. The fly fishing only rule slated for Pennask next year may cut down the pressure and catch, but if it doesn't, other restrictive measures will no doubt be taken.

The trout egg collection at the Pennask Hatchery has just finished with a quite successful season after two bad ones because of high water conditions.

SOME 3,000,000 EGGS were taken, bringing the season's egg collection from all interior sources to around 8,000,000. This makes for a successful year to date and if it goes well in the rearing program it means a lot of fish to catch a few years hence.

HATHEUME LAKE is also producing well with the average size above the Pennask size.

The Kelowna and District Search and Rescue organization held their annual Fish Derby at this lake last weekend.

SOME 25-30 MEMBERS took part and approximately 250 trout were weighed in. The prize for the heaviest fish went to Bill Wayne. Bill also had the heaviest catch. Francis Blackman, took second prize for heaviest fish and Andy Melnychuk took third prize. Ed Kilbiski took second prize for the heaviest catch and Fred Kitch took third prize.

Hidden weight prizes were won by Hugo Steurle and John Blande. Jerry Shelly took the prize for the smallest trout—one tipping the scales at three and a half ounces. Rex Fitzgerald got the prize for the largest spawner, a trout that would go four pounds in its condition.

THE FISH WAS to stay behind and clean up the campsite. Good time was had by all especially those that camped over Saturday night. I am told even the lake's loons joined the party. I noted the Ospreys were not back at their nest all day Sunday, except for a couple of shrieking passes.

HATHEUME CAN take considerable fishing as the lake is well stocked. The fish average—half to one and a half pounds with a few good sized ones in the lake—largest reported to date this season was seven pounds. It is an ideal fly fishing lake and has a very pretty shoreline.

Access is limited to four wheel drives and pick-up trucks, except in very dry weather when higher clearance cars could get in. There is a nice campsite on the lake which is on park reserve. Boat rental is limited. Hatheume Lake Resort is situated near the north end of the lake and is a fine lodge, with accommodation by reservation. The lodge also has fine fishing on a group of nearby lakes which are all on private land.

THE FISH STORY of the week is on the Ben Waldron-McKinley Team. They were having good fishing on Hatheume Saturday, and at one time, both had good sized fish on and both up to the boat.

One of the fish made a rush at the boat and jumped hitting Ben on the face and knocked off his glasses. In the confusion both fish made their getaway, this is what is called teamwork.

IT WAS SAID one fish jumped right after getting free, making a sort of gesture of nose thumbing. Of course Ben couldn't see this without his glasses.

Three Kelowna Trapsnooters, Bill Colthard, Mac McEwan and Ken Shepherd took part in the annual Potlatch of the Pacific Indian Trap Shoot Lodge held last week at the Harrison Hot Springs Hotel. This is a four-day event that has been running for many years, attracting over 100 members each year.

BILL COLTHARD won the High Canadian award in the handicap shoot. Shooters came from all over the northwest. Jack Walker of Medford, Ore., was in to Kelowna this week to look at the facilities for trapsnooting here and at the accommodation, with the thought this shoot could be held in Kelowna in the future.

KELOWNA COULD do well to attract this group to this area, and efforts will be made to do so. The Fish and Game Club's facilities for Trap Shooting at Sportmen's Field are almost second to none in B.C., quite adequate for such a large group.

The B.C. Open Trapsnoot Championship will be staged here in Kelowna in 1970.

Then Funny Thing Happened To A Quiet Football Coach

GIMLI, Man. (CP) — Something has happened to head coach Joe Zaleski of Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Joe was originally one of the quiet men of Canadian football, pre-occupied and remote.

Today, his voice crackles across the training field to raise dust off a lineman he feels is dogging it or his cry of "you didn't want it bad enough" scorches a receiver who drops the ball in a crowd.

Last year, the Bombers were a mob in training camp.

This year it's different.

Zaleski has his defensive backs riding his receivers; the offence works out separately; then goes into the defensive backfield with the regulars to learn their secondary positions.

And they go through their drills repeatedly.

"Last year we received as many ballplayers as we could find. This year we took our nucleus and went out and recruited more for positions," Zaleski says.

"We ran our practices differently last year. We did a lot of hitting. This year we're doing a lot of just running plays and getting the timing down."

WEAK ON TIMING

Timing was the big weakness last year," especially in the offence.

"In our passing, there was no co-ordination between the receiver and the quarterback," Zaleski says.

"I'd like to get another running back and possibly a big fullback. And we've always played with two tight ends—now we're going into a split end so that is going to be an open position."

Another running back would take the pressure off veteran Dave Rainey, the Bombers' bread-and-butter runner and Zaleski may have the man in Eddie Edwards from Lincoln University.

Edwards took a hand-squeeze test and proved out to 250 pounds, making him one of the strongest men in camp.

But if Zaleski knows what he wants, he is equally certain of what he has.

"We have four top-notch guards and there's going to be quite a battle for one of our tackle spots. We can still use a good defensive back."

Zaleski also expresses happiness with the quarterbacking.

EXPECTS SOME PROGRESS

"John Schneider has the No. 1 job and he has to be beaten out of it. We expect to see some progress in John this year—I think he learned more last season than most quarterbacks do in two."

Behind Schneider, Luther Selbo has returned and Zaleski is working him hard.

"Our backup quarterback has to be an active player and we hope that Selbo can help us in the secondary."

"It will probably mean replacing a Canadian, but we can't have an American quarterback sitting on the bench waiting for something to happen."

The Conference is going to be more balanced this year," Zaleski says.

OMBL CONTEST

Kelowna Team Aiming For That Second Place

Kelowna Labs go scrambling for sole possession of second place in the Okanagan Mainline Baseball League when they meet league-leading Vernon, Saturday in Elk's Stadium.

Tied with Penticton, five and one-half points back of Vernon, Kelowna is riding the crest of a six for six win-loss record, dampened only by a double header loss to Vancouver Longshoremen in exhibition play.

Short-handed some of their best men in the exhibition game Kelowna will meet Vernon in full strength since the Okanagan All-Star team was blasted out of B.C. Championship play by Vancouver last week.

Back in the home team lineup are star pitcher Len Tweed and outfielder Gerry Robertson who is leading the league in home runs.

Kelowna pulled into second place, blanking Penticton 7-0, in a game that climaxed a comeback from an early season slump.

COMEBACK

Extra fuel for the Kelowna comeback was supplied by an extensive import program, last month which brought in new blood from the United States and other points.

Vernon, Saturday night's foe, is one of the few teams that has not been tumbled by the revitalized Kelowna squad since it went on the win trail and pulled into contention.

Saturday is the half-way mark for Kelowna with 11-games left in regular season play.

Kelowna plays away against

Kamloops July 3 and come home to play Penticton again July 5. Penticton, Kelowna's only obstacle to second place, also meets Vernon this weekend in Vernon.

BIGGER CHOWD

The Labs executive is looking for an increase in crowd attendance as the season passes the half-way mark and Kelowna standing to improve with each game.

Community support is sought for the Saturday game as all proceeds from gate are to be turned over to the Kinsmen swimming pool funds.

Crowds for most games have been "exceptionally low".

The Gardens Fires Top Two But Smythe Plans On Fight

TORONTO (CP) — Stafford Smythe, fired Thursday as president of Maple Leaf Gardens, said today he would fight the decision at the next stockholders' meeting.

Smythe was dismissed along with executive vice president Harold Ballard.

The board of directors asked them for their resignations, but when they refused to quit they were dismissed by an 8-to-7 vote.

The reason for the dismissals was given as "differences of opinion on administrative matters."

"I'll vote all the shares I have with me and we'll see what happens then," Smythe said today. "I could blow this high, wide and handsome, but I don't intend to say anything now."

Ballard and Smythe own 299,950 of the 735,580 common shares issued in Maple Leaf Gardens Ltd.—approximately 41 per cent.

They would have to gain 51 per cent of the votes to upset the board's decision to fire them.

George Mara, 47, a Gardens' director was named president to succeed Smythe, whose father, Conn, built the Gardens in 1931 to house Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

No new executive vice-president was named.

The dismissals were announced after a four-hour board meeting, attended by 15 of the 21 Gardens' directors.

The decision was revealed in a terse statement from Ian Johnston, Gardens' legal counsel and board secretary.

Rutland Squad Blanked Out

Bunny Combes went the distance for Kelowna to blank Rutland Rovers 3-0 in Senior B Softball, Thursday, at Kings Park.

A double by Wayne Horning in the fourth brought in two of Kelowna's runs and Horning was brought in by singles to end scoring in the game.

Combes held Rutland to five hits.

Dave Kroschinsky and relief pitcher Arnie Rath, who came in in the fourth, pitched strong defensive ball holding Kelowna to five hits.

Royals next game is against Vernon, in Vernon, Monday, followed by a four-day rest before meeting Carls in Kings Park, July 3.

Teamsters Gain A Breather

Kelowna Teamsters gained additional breathing space before the summer lay-off by winning their closest rival, Kamloops Excels, 7-4 in Kamloops during the weekend.

The win gave Kelowna a firm three-point grip on first place in the Okanagan Valley Soccer League which has started its annual six-week summer rest period.

A flare-up near the 75-minute mark forced the referee to eject one Kelowna and three Kamloops players from the game.

Playing one man short Kelowna entered the second half down 2-1 but quickly dominated play with three goals from Tony Ambrosio and two from Fred Molzahn. Mike Hreovic scored Kelowna's sole first half goal and added one more in the second half.

Ken Serle scored twice for Kamloops.

Crowds Can Make Or Break Those Wimbledon Hopefuls

WIMBLEDON (AP) — The crowds at Wimbledon can help to defeat a tennis star—even a cool old campaigner like Ken Rosewall.

The 34-year-old Australian, upset by Bob Lutz of the United States in the third round of the men's singles Thursday, confessed that for the first time in his career the fans disturbed his concentration.

The match was on Wimbledon's No. 3 court, where the fans can wander in and out without paying extra admission money. The paths on either side were jam-packed as Rosewall slid to defeat.

"I was conscious of the fans jostling and pushing to try to see the match," Rosewall said.

"Then there was a man in uniform trying to control the crush and shouting to people to keep moving and not block the entrance. And I could hear buses and heavy trucks rumbling past the gate."

"All this didn't seem to upset Bob Lutz, but it upset me."

SOME 30,000 ATTEND

The fans who watched Lutz triumph over Rosewall 6-6, 7-9, 6-3, 6-2 were just a part of the 30,000 who thronged the All-England Tennis Club.

Enthusiasm for tennis is sky-high here—partly because of the publicity given to Pancho Gonzalez' victory over Charlie Pasarell. That match, spread over Tuesday and Wednesday, broke all records.

It was given bigger headlines in the British press than any other Wimbledon match in years.

Rosewall, seeded fourth, was the third of the 16 seeds to fall. Other seeded players already eliminated are Bob Hewitt and Ray Moore, both of South Africa.

Arthur Ashe of the U.S. won a jittery match against Graham Stilwell of England 6-2, 1-6, 6-2, 13-15, 12-10. But another leading American contender, unseeded Cliff Richey, went out 6-2, 4-6, 5-7, 4-6 to Bob Carmichael of Australia.

Gonzales whipped Over Bengtsson of Sweden 6-4, 6-3, 6-3.

Faye Urban of Windsor, Ont., only Canadian in the tournament, was eliminated in the women's singles, losing to American Denise Carter 4-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Hockey School To Start Here

The annual summer hockey school will be held at the arena beginning Wednesday to July 19.

As in past years, the sessions will be broken into three groups, and feature chalk talks as well as actual on-ice game instruction between the hours of 1 and 8 p.m. There is no age limit and registration fee is $15. Head instructor, Granger Evans, said the classes are being held one-month ahead of the usual August date because of ice commitments this year.

Vancouver Island A Tourist Mecca

By BARRY BROADFOOT

If Vancouver Island should split from Canada and sail away and drop anchor in the Pacific it would only be a few weeks before the cruise ships and sea-going ferries and jetliners would be as busy as ever.

At the risk of sounding ridiculous, Vancouver Island is the kind of place which vacationers will travel any distance to visit. The reason? It has everything.

If big cities are your thing, it has Victoria, with one great hotel, dripping with tradition and a history of service. The Empress, naturally. And several other fine hotels and many motels, many recently built, modern as tomorrow but each with that special bit of individuality. And fine restaurants, including one on an old ship. Americans love that. So do Canadians. And night spots, and discotheques. Yes, Victoria swings.

And the Parliament Buildings, if you want to watch politicians at play; and there's the Ye Olde English bit which everybody smiles at, but it is undeniably there. And Beacon Hill Park and its flowers, and the view of the snow-mantled Olympic Range across the blue Strait of Juan de Fuca.

And Bastion Square with its smart boutiques, and the Maritime Museum and the new Provincial Centennial Museum. You could spend a day in these two. Want to know about early British Columbia? Well, it's all there.

Take the waterfront drive out around Oak Bay, or the road to Point No Point and watch the combers pound in from Asia.

Feel like landing a big salmon? Well, a small one then? Drive out the Island Highway and stop off at Mill Bay and rent a boat and tackle and try for a big one. Be patient, though. Give it two or three hours. Or drive on to Cowichan Bay. There's dandy fishing there, too. In fact, all this pin-pointing of the best spots is futile because you can find good-to-great fishing anywhere on the Island. After all, the Pacific Ocean surrounds the thing.

If you're in the Chemainus area any afternoon, do drop in at the MacMillan Bloedel sawmill there. It's one of the largest in the world, and the things they do to a log you just wouldn't believe. They'll be glad to take you on an escorted tour, and explain it. Or stop in at Bear Point nearby and the engineers at the British Columbia Hydro gas turbine generating station will show you how they make 100,000 kilowatts.

We forgot Duncan. Go back three squares (that's south) and ask your way to Koksilah and ask to see the Indians spinning the wool and then knitting those wonderful Cowichan sweaters. They don't come cheap, but they're the best travel buy

THE PARLIAMENT BUILDING, VICTORIA
... English style city but it swings you'll find anywhere. Wonderful conversation pieces, too.

While you're there, try some fly fishing in the Cowichan River. If you strike out there, just say you're practising for some of the many other rivers farther up the Island.

Now, drive on north and turn off at the sign pointing to the Cowichan Valley Forest Museum. It's worth a good visit, and the children will love the old machines, lovingly cared for. This country was built on logging and lumber, and this is the place to see how it was in the old days.

Then back to the Trans-Canada Highway, and drive on to Nanaimo, once a Hudson's Bay post in the wild days. Its main attraction is the Bastion, a long fort-like tower and it's a museum too. Nanaimo calls itself the "Hub City" and that it is, the main centre for the upper island. Plenty of good accommodation and restaurants. A fine place to spend the night.

Visit the Indian war canoe and totem poles in Georgia Park, and take a 10-minute ferry ride to Newcastle Island and stroll through the tall timber.

Alternate TV Service Sought

OTTAWA (Special) — Two applications for the provision of alternate television service in Kelowna, Penticton, Kamloops and Vernon have been received by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission.

The Commission will hold a public hearing in Vancouver starting either Oct. 14 or 15 to consider a number of radio and TV applications from the west coast.

The application for the second stations are from British Columbia Television Broadcasting System Ltd. of Vancouver and from Ian G. Clark.

However, it is believed that the Clark application may be withdrawn prior to the hearing and if the CRTC approves the B.C. Television Broadcasting application it would provide CTV network programming on a re-broadcast basis.

Violence 'Provoked'

OTTAWA (CP) — Norman Isaacs, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, charged Wednesday that both television and newspaper reporters in the United States have often provoked violence because of a desire for speed and concentration on action.

In a panel discussion at the general assembly of the International Press Institute, Mr. Isaacs loosed a sharp attack on the fee system under which television reporters receive extra pay for appearing on camera.

He called it an abhorrent system and said it leads to creation of incidents to capture the attention of network editors.

There was too little attention to the underlying causes of violence.

"We simply have to cease manufacturing drama where none exists and overplaying it where it does exist," he said.

CBS HEAD DISAGREES

Mr. Isaacs, vice-president and executive editor of the Courier-Journal and Louisville Times of Louisville, Ky., was rebutted in part by Frank Stanton, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Mr. Stanton cited a CBS directive saying the best coverage of civil disturbances is not necessarily the one with the best pictures and the most dramatic action, and stressing the need to put the news in context.

Mr. Isaacs said that American coverage of violence, after a shamefully inadequate start, had improved greatly among a limited number of the best newspapers, both large and small.

There had been a desperate clinging to coverage methods and news judgment of the late 19th and early 20th centuries.

SPEED OFTEN SENSELESS

Television had copied the newspaper fault of the "often senseless drive for speed," as well as the abhorrent fee system.

Never before has the American news media been so defensive while being so successful, Mr. Isaacs said.

OLD RANGER DIES

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Stanley Andrews, 77, the Old Ranger in the radio and early television period of Death Valley Days, died Monday. He was a veteran of more than 50 years in show business.

Book Corner

coated appeal to the Briton's appetite for self-improvement has revived a dormant branch of publishing which brought early rewards to such writers as Charles Dickens and H. G. Wells.

The Victorian habit of buying novels and reference books in easily digestible weekly chunks has been revamped, using modern printing and production techniques and eye-catching color and layout.

Week by week, more than 1,000,000 British readers are buying cheap 30-to-40 page magazines and building up impressive encyclopedias ranging from a scholarly history of the 20th century to a six-volume home medical handbook and a complete chef's course on cordon bleu cooking.

The Edwardians and the Victorians were avid collectors of weekly magazines carrying novels by such literary luminaries as Dickens, Sir Walter Scott, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle and other popular writers of the period. Often pressed for time and money, some authors would have the first chapters on the streets before they had written the end.

H. G. Wells's most popular factual work, Outline of History, originally was published in weekly chapters in the 1930s before the fashion died out.

WAR A SELLOUT

An Italian publisher realized the full potential of part-publishing in the 1950s. One of his most successful series, a general-knowledge encyclopedia for early-teens, was translated and published all over Europe.

The biggest market lay in series designed for adults.

One of the earliest, a 96-part history of the Second World War selling at 45 cents a week, began in 1966, with contributions from generals and eminent military historians and lavish illustrations from the vaults of the Imperial War Museum.

The publishers hoped to sell about 30,000 copies a week. They hit a circulation of around 128,000. The series stretched to 128 issues.

Last year a more ambitious history of the 20th century was launched, with Prof. A. J. P. Taylor, one of Britain's most renowned contemporary historians, as editor-in-chief.

Selling 130,000 copies a week at 45 cents each, it is currently two-thirds through its 96 parts.

Eventually it will cover the first 65 years of this century in articles by 300 historians from 25 countries and experts on politics, science, war, the arts and social history.

GARDENING POPULAR

An 84-part color encyclopedia of gardening is currently being bought by 100,000 green-fingered readers and a 105-chapter family medical encyclopedia called The Book of Life is selling 300,000 copies a week.

Housewives and hostesses are boning up on the mysteries of haute cuisine in the Cordon Bleu cookery course which is finding its way into 100,000 kitchens weekly.

The latest title on the stands is Great Musicians, an 84-part primer on classical music.

Scheduled for the future are works on bird watching, stamp collecting, fishing and possibly a series on jazz.

The strangest idea on the drawing board is a study of religion and black magic. Called Man, Myth and Magic, it promises an exhaustive survey of mysticism, superstition and religious faith through the ages.

Vanda Wasn't Over Exposed

TORONTO (CP) — Back in 1960 Canadian television told Vanda King that at 16 she was a has-been, that she was over-exposed.

"They actually told me that," she says. "That I'd finished on TV and they didn't want to see my face any more."

Nine years later she has proved them wrong. Now, at last, Vanda King has become a full-blown Canadian star. Next season she gets her own CTV network series when she'll star as Diamond Lil, the rollicking music hall hostess of the Gay 90s. There's even a chance of possible syndication in the United States.

For Vanda the rocky road to stardom started in 1958. One day she was just an ordinary high school girl who liked to sing, took guitar lessons and idolized Elvis Presley.

Then a quick trip to New York, and the future looked too good to be true. She went home to Toronto with a contract for a movie part and a date to appear on the Ed Sullivan television show.

It was too good to be true. The Sullivan appearance turned out to be only an audition; the movie only a screen test. Her hit record Randy never made it past No. 22 spot on the Canadian charts.

ANOTHER BLOW

Then two years later came the blow from Canadian TV—she was a has-been.

For two years she worked as a private secretary "when the singing was lean."

Then an offer came from the Skyline Hotel at Toronto's international airport. They wanted a band singer and she ended up working at the hotel for six years.

After the Skyline came a two-year stint on the ribald and raucous CBC Nightcap show. Some critics saw her as its only redeeming feature. It was during this time that co-star Bonnie Brooks introduced her to a six-foot singer who had been eyeing Vanda from the sidelines. Six months later the twice-engaged Vanda King became Mrs. Dave Higgins.

Now she's been called the heiress-apparent to Juliette, CBC's established star.

BOUGHT IN BRITAIN

The BBC television network has purchased 13 episodes of the CBC television series Wojcek and has scheduled them on a regular weekly basis.

Raspy Voice And Poet Too

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — His voice has the timbre of, say, a carpenter's rasp shredding cardboard. Yet his albums have sold 14,000,000 copies.

His poems are fleeting fragments of memory: childhood... a lost cat... loneliness... women made love to. Critics' comments, largely favorable, have ranged from "best song writer in the country today" to "banal."

"Suddenly," Rod McKuen remarked, the slouching six feet of him collapsed on a davenport in his hillside home. "I'm going to be in Who's Who. It turns out that I've sold more poetry than any poet in history."

His three books of poems—Stanyan Street and Other Sorrows, Listen to the Warm and Lonesome Cities—have sold about 1,500,000 copies in hard cover the last two years.

McKuen, just turned 36, is a self-taught poet, singer, composer and lyricist. In croaking vocals and rumbling recitations, he is a chansonnier to record-buying masses in night clubs and concert halls.

Working at a typewriter, the melodies coming simultaneously with the words, he has written nearly 1,000 songs.

Some 60 other performers' recordings of many of them have sold more than 40,000,000 albums.

The past year had been "exciting." He had composed background scores for the movies

Joanna and The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie... written a Concerto for Four Harpsichords—"my first full-length classical work"—and written two books of poems and a screenplay.

He had written "a whole album for Frank Sinatra, who I think is about the best singer anywhere, which he has just recorded and which was a big thrill"... and received a gold record for The Sea and a Grammy award for his album of Lonesome Cities.

McKuen has blue eyes; shaggy, coppery blonde hair and a long-nosed, handsome face scarred by teen-age acne. His past includes birth in Oakland, Calif., interrupted schooling as his mother moved about the West, and jobs as cowpoke, lumberjack, shoe salesman, cookie puncher in a biscuit factory and disc jockey at KROW, San Francisco.

MUSEUM NOTES

Happiness Was Straight Seam

By URSULA SURTEES

"Goldilocks, Goldilocks, will you be mine? Thou shalt not wash dishes, nor yet feed the swine, But sit on a cushion and sew a fine seam. And feed upon strawberries, peaches and cream."

Well, sewing a fine seam may not have been every young lady's idea of complete happiness, but certainly it was required of her in the 1800s.

Great ladies have occupied their leisure hours in this manner for centuries. From Penelope (wed to the Greek hero Odysseus) who used her needlework and weaving as an excuse to keep unwanted suitors waiting—saying that she would decide on one when her work was completed, then unraveling at night the work she had done in the day—thus she was never finished.

In more recent times, the late Dowager Queen Mary was an accomplished needlewoman, and some of her work has been exhibited to raise funds for charities. Needlework has recorded history—as in the famous Bayeux Tapestry, which is a strip of linen 200 feet long and 20 inches wide, worked in seven colors, and shows 58 different scenes connected with the life of William the Conqueror, and believed to have been worked during his lifetime, possibly by Queen Matilda. This tapestry is one of France's prized possessions.

At the museum we are gradually getting a nice collection of some of the beautiful hand made garments worn by great-grandmother, the seams and hems worked with tiny, almost invisible stitches. Laces, embroidery, exquisite baby clothes, a sampler worked by an eight-year-old in 1842, and a petit-point picture done in the late 1700s are a few other items.

We will have to construct especially shaped forms to display many of these garments. The tiny waists just won't do up around the more buxom models of today. We hope to have a good exhibit put together by the Autumn, when a special showing is planned.

New Spy-Thriller Made By Canada

TORONTO (CP)—A new Canadian-financed spy thriller to be filmed in Hong Kong is his latest project, American actor-director Burgess Meredith said Tuesday.

Mr. Meredith will direct Touch and Go, a feature-length film for Diba Productions Ontario Ltd., which has hired a U.S. production company.

"So many aspiring film-makers get a studio or actors before they know what they want to do," says Mr. Meredith. "But if you have one good script, you can build everything else around it."

Diba owner Ian Ross says: "We want to establish a company with Canadian funds which will use Los Angeles and New York as a base of operations. Only in these areas do you have the reservoir of talent and that sense of commercialism needed for film success."

This Eyepatch Made History

NEW YORK (AP)—Daron George Wrangell, 65, whose eyepatch made advertising history when he was featured in Hathaway shirt advertisements, died Sunday after a short illness.

The ads first appeared in The New Yorker in 1951, showing the dashing baron, patch over his right eye. The "injured man" symbol was a brainchild of David Ogilvy, the Madison Avenue advertising pioneer.

Wrangell's sight was normal, however.

A fashion and society columnist for the old New York Journal-American, Wrangell was the son of a former Imperial Russian consul-general in Rome and nephew of a commander of the Russian White Army.

Judy's Final Encore Heard In London

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A study in contrast:

Francis Gumm and Edna Mae Durbin were best friends in the MGM studio school.

Both were small girls, with extraordinarily big singing voices, and they were under contract to the biggest studio in Hollywood.

The two young singers were scheduled to be fired, and Edna Mae was dropped first. She went over to Universal and became an immediate star in Three Smart Girls.

As Deanna Durbin, who was born in Winnipeg, she saved the foundering Universal from bankruptcy with a series of funny musicals.

Realizing its mistake in releasing the screen's most popular teen-ager, MGM held onto Francis. A pudgy girl, she was slow in developing as a film performer.

But as Judy Garland, she finally made it in The Wizard of Oz.

Then, she recalled in later years, "people stopped referring to me as the kid they were stuck with when they let Deanna Durbin go."

HATED MOVIE LIFE

Besides their strong voices, Judy Garland and Deanna Durbin had one thing in common: They hated their lives as movie stars.

Pushed onto the stage by ambitious mothers, both girls were naturally shy. Both were disquieted by the attention they received as youthful stars.

"I would like to have people like me because I was just Edna, not Deanna," Miss Durbin once remarked.

"I would like to walk down a street and have people admire me because of the dress I was wearing, or the look in my eye, or the bounce of my hair—not because I was a movie star."

Judy once commented on her MGM bosses: "They were just dreadful. They had a theory that they were all powerful, and they ruled by fear. What better way to make young persons behave than to scare the hell out of them every day?"

After a decade of stardom, both their careers began their inevitable decline.

Audiences failed to accept Deanna in grown-up roles. Judy, who started later, was able to mature on the screen but her erratic behavior caused studios to be wary of her.

Deanna made a clean break after Up in Central Park in 1947. She sat out her Universal contract—at $350,000 for the year.

DEANNA IN PARIS

She had known two unhappy Hollywood marriages then married French writer Charles David. She moved to a village outside Paris where she still lives with her husband and two children.

When I last saw her in Paris, she remarked: "It was not that I did not like acting. I did, although the kind of picture I made did not place much demand on acting. What I didn't like was the publicity, invasion of my private life. A person needs to have an identity of his own. When you're a star, it's virtually impossible."

Judy never quit. She continued living her life in the spotlight, through marriages and divorces, on-stage collapses and suicide tries.

She continued pushing her remarkable voice until it became a quavering mockery of its one-time brilliance.

One of her confessionals in the women's magazines was titled: "There will always be an encore." But the encore was over last Sunday when she was found dead in her London home at age 47.

High Praise Handed Star, Human Being

GATLINBURG, Tenn. (AP) — "Ingrid's not a star; she's beyond that," says movie producer Stirling Silliphant. "When you see her on the screen, you're not aware of seeing an actress, you're seeing a human being."

Ingrid Bergman, the star who is not a star, the actress who is "in, but not of, Hollywood," stood in the yard of a Tennessee farm, overlooking a muddy road. Her arms crossed against her chest, her head down in thought, she awaited a director's quiet summons to the next scene in the film, A Walk in the Spring Rain.

Behind her sat Anthony Quinn, sun-tanned, unshaven and wearing blue coveralls for his part in this, his umpteenth—38th?—film, yet only his second to be filmed in the United States in about 11 years.

It was actually this story, A Walk in the Spring Rain, which brought Miss Bergman in front of an American movie camera for the first time since Joan of Arc 21 years ago.

FILM IT ANYWHERE

"I waited three years for this one," she said. "I would have filmed it in Australia, in Africa, anywhere so I can do it."

She spoke quickly, in her slight Nordic tones, oddly shy, strangely nervous at being interviewed. But natural, talkative, curious about everything, anxious to talk about other people, other things.

She went on to explain that because of delays in starting A Walk in the Spring Rain, she agreed to do Cactus Flower first—and it will actually mark her return to the American screen.

The story she loved so much is about a middle-aged woman who walks along New York's Fifth Avenue in the spring rain and recalls a brief romantic encounter in Tennessee the previous winter and early spring.

Silliphant, winner of an Academy Award for his screenplay for In the Heat of the Night, also wrote the screenplay for his latest picture based on the Rachel Maddux novella. He had heard Miss Bergman was interested in the story and approached her when she returned to Broadway two years ago in Eugene O'Neill's More Stately Mansions.

"It's all a woman's thoughts," explains Miss Bergman. "She remembers the months spent in these mountains"—her long, slender arms pass across the Smokey as her blue eyes reflect their beauty.

"She tells herself, 'I am not happy nor unhappy. When you get to this age, this grandmother's age . . . Then she meets this man, a man of nature as opposed to her intellectual husband. It is the blossoming up of a woman—as the spring.'"

Rarely has an actress so pervaded a film production as Miss Bergman has this one. It is a film she wanted to do; she owns a part of the production.

"Everyone is natural because of her," says Silliphant. "Because she's natural. She's herself. She's emotional; she reacts to everything. She's nothing but nerve endings."

The feeling applies to young and old: Tom Fielding, a 25-year-old who gets a big break in a featured role as Quinn's son says:

"I respect Quinn. He does his job—and very well—and he respects me for doing mine. But Ingrid . . ."

Tom Stern Sues Actress Wife

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tom Stern, American actor-producer, has sued Samantha Eggar, British actress, for divorce on grounds of extreme cruelty.

In his complaint filed Monday, Stern, 37, asked custody of their children, Nicholas, 3, and Jenna Louise, 2. He described Miss Eggar, 30, as an unfit mother and said she had threatened to take the children abroad and hide them. The petition said she had hidden $500,000 in European banks.

The couple were married in 1964.

NOT PRUDERY, JUST PRUDENCE

LONDON (AP) — Paradise Now was the title of the show. Then the police arrived and it was paradise lost.

Actors and some of the audience were piled up naked or near-naked on the stage. Others were dancing in the aisles, with girls stripped down to pants and bra.

It happened Monday night at the Roundhouse Theatre, a former locomotive shed now housing the Living Theatre of New York.

As the police strode in, a cry went up from the American actors: "British prudery."

A police officer replied it was nothing of the sort—just that fire regulations insist that theatre audience stick to their seats.

TORONTO (CP) — Well-wishers Monday raised about half the estimated legal expenses for the director and producers of the controversial play Futz, who are to be tried Wednesday on charges of presenting an immoral performance.

The play, staged by a Rochdale College group, is about a farmer in love with his pig.

The Freedom for the Theatre night—a potpourri of musical, literary and theatrical offerings—raised about $2,500.

About 300 persons, at $5 each, turned up at an old converted multi-use theatre. Others contributed $1,000 in proxy tickets.

New TV Show Given Praise

PARIS (CP) — D'Iberville, a new television serial about a hero of French-Canada's pioneering era, is praised today by the newspaper L'Aurore.

A joint project of Canadian, French, Belgium and Swiss TV, the series was made by the CBC and features a number of French-Canadian actors.

L'Aurore says the early episodes seen so far on French television are "very promising" from the point of view of chapters to come.

"This serial gives the impression of being well constructed, alert, flavored with a certain truculence and based on a captivating story," the paper continues.

It has special praise for actor Jacques Monod and also for the Canadian landscape in which the series is set.

This it finds "full of enchantment."

The program tells the story of Montreal-born Pierre Le Moyne d'Iberville, prominent in the military campaigns and explorations that characterized the history of 17th-century Canada.

SS Sergeant Tracked Down Years After Ghetto Horror

BERLIN (Reuters) — A former Nazi SS sergeant whose face was known to millions from a poignant wartime photograph of the survivors of the Warsaw ghetto was recently tracked down in a sleepy little East German town although his face was disfigured from an accident.

Josef Bloesche, a sergeant in Hitler's SS Elite Guard, was sentenced to death by a court in Erfurt for his part in the wartime killing of Jews after West and East German authorities worked together to trace the tracks he had so carefully covered for almost 25 years.

Bloesche, now 57, was born in the town of Friedland, in the Sudeten area of Czechoslovakia, and joined the Nazi party when Hitler took over the area in 1938.

At the outbreak of the Second World War, he was sent to occupied Poland where he ended up serving in a special police squad and was present at the Warsaw ghetto uprising of 1943, when the survivors of the ghetto made a heroic but fruitless bid to escape the gas chambers of Treblinka.

Bloesche appeared in one of the most tragic and best-known photographs of the war. It depicted the survivors of the ghetto—the old, women and children—being herded from the ghetto towards Treblinka.

The picture, whose impact was heightened by a young boy in the foreground, his terrified face dwarfed by a soft cloth cap and his hands held high, was distributed around the world and appeared in thousands of newspapers.

Bloesche appears in the picture, which was recently reprinted by the East Berlin newspaper Berliner Zeitung, as a menacing figure on the right with his rifle levelled at the boy's back.

The photograph probably never would have been taken but for the conceit of the SS commander in charge of clearing the ghetto who was so proud of his handling of the operation that he insisted on making a pictorial record of it and bound it in leather.

The volume of 53 photographs was found by United States troops at the end of the war and produced as evidence at the Nuremberg war crimes trials.

The first clues to the existence of Bloesche were unearthed by the public prosecutor's office in Hamburg, West Germany, which discovered that the sergeant had been recommended for a decoration for his part in the ghetto operation.

This came about during routine investigations into the whole Warsaw ghetto incident.

FIND HIS FILE
The investigators then turned their attention to the West Berlin document centre, where Bloesche's personal file as a Nazi and SS member was discovered.

Interrogation of others involved in the ghetto tragedy finally identified him as the mystery figure in the notorious photograph.

In 1968, further investigations revealed that Bloesche had settled in Urbach, a small mining town in Thuringia, East Germany.

Metis Claim Harassment

OTTAWA (CP) — Metis in Saskatchewan are coming under severe police harassment, Dr. Howard Adams, president of The Metis Society of Saskatchewan, told the Senate's special committee on poverty today.

Dr. Adams said police are stopping Metis and searching them with no reason. "We are being charged for obstructing now," he said.

In reply to questions, Dr. Adams, assistant professor at the University of Saskatchewan's college of education, said he does not think the harassment is being carried out under duress.

He thought the police were taking it on themselves, since there is a great awakening of nationalism among the province's Metis population. It was a way of curtailing the movement or keeping the Metis in their place.

OAS Approves Jamaica's Bid

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The Organization of American States has given approval to Jamaica's application to join its ranks as the 24th member. The vote was 20 to 1. Paraguay was the only dissenter and Bolivia abstained. Cuba, the 23rd member of the OAS, is at present suspended.

TEST YOUR PLAY
1. You are declarer with the West hand at Four Spades and North leads the four of spades. South follows with the king, which you win with the ace. How would you play the hand?

▲ A 10 9 7 3 N ▲ Q J 8 5
♦ J 10 5 W ♦ A 6 3
♥ Q Q S ♥ A 8
▲ A Q 9 2 B ▲ 8 5 4

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Six Diamonds and North leads the ace of spades. Assuming the trumps are divided 2-2, how would you play the hand?

▲ A Q 4 N ▲ Q 6
♦ A K J 10 5 W ♦ 8 5 3
♥ A J 10 6 3 B ♥ Q 9 7 2
S ♥ K 7 6 4

1. This is one of those perfect hands where, if you play correctly, no lie of the cards can defeat you.

Cash the ten of spades and ace of diamonds, ruff a diamond, cash the ace of clubs (this is important), cross to the club five, if South follows low, play the nine. Assume North wins with the ten and returns a low heart. When you duck in dummy, South wins but is sure to be stymied. If he has no more clubs, he must lead a heart or give you a ruff and discard. If he has a club to lead, he is forced to establish your last club on which you will later discard a heart from dummy.

If, on the first club lead from dummy, South produces the ten of jack, you cover with the queen. It then becomes easy to build up an extra club trick after North takes the queen with the king.

In other words, even if you give South the guarded K-Q of hearts behind dummy's ace and North the K-J-10-x of clubs—which is the worst possible lie of the cards for you—you still make the contract by careful play.

2. Ruff the spade, draw two rounds of trumps, and ruff another spade. Then play a low club to the king. If both opponents follow suit, you are home.

Continue with a club. If South shows out, take the ace and exit with a club, forcing North to return a heart or lead a spade—on which you would discard a heart from dummy as you ruffed in your hand. In either case, you score the rest of the tricks.

You also make the slam if South follows low on the club lead from dummy. Finesse the jack. If it wins, you have twelve tricks; if it loses, North is up against the same end-play described above.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

FOR TOMORROW
Stellar influences now bring a tendency toward restlessness, which will cause many to go off on unprofitable tangents in order to escape routine or monotony; could also cause emotional upsets and general jitteriness. Do your best to curb such inclinations yourself. A good day for initiating new methods, however.

FOR THE BIRTHDAY
If tomorrow is your birthday, the year ahead should bring great happiness in your personal life. Domestic, social and sentimental interests should prove highly stimulating, with emphasis on romance during October, next April and June; on travel and social activities in October, January, April and May. In the latter connection, you will find many opportunities for making some valuable new contacts.

Where job matters are concerned, excellent headway can be made through a comprehensive and well-planned program—if you launch it immediately and follow through consistently. Advancement, with corresponding monetary reward, can be expedited by extending your scope of activity and showing a willingness to assume additional responsibilities. Most auspicious periods along material lines: The weeks between Aug. 15 and Nov. 1, the first half of January, late February, the latter half of March and all of next May. Do avoid extravagance and/or speculation during late September and throughout October, however; also during the latter half of December. Caution during the September period will be extremely important.

A child born on this day will be extraordinarily ambitious and independent, but may have to curb tendencies toward hypersensitivity and jealousy.

Piao May Look Like Dupe But He'll Lead Red China

TOKYO (AP) — Standing beside Mao Tse-tung, Lin Piao looks lost in his new military greatcoat, so ill at ease one may question whether he is leader or led, Communist China's next ruler or an old man's dupe.

Defence minister of the People's Republic, the second most powerful man in the nation, the 62-year-old Lin is Mao's official designated successor, his inheritance proclaimed in a new Communist party constitution adopted in April.

Everything about Lin invites the adjective "mousey"—his small nondescript face, his undistinguished voice, his sloping shoulders in the faintly ridiculous long coat, adorned with two rows of buttons. Wounds and illness are said to have put him on the sidelines for long periods during his career.

A close friend of Mao's since the early days of the Communist revolution, Lin has since 1959 become so closely intertwined with the Chinese Communist chairman it is next to impossible to distinguish the tree from the vine. Lin has progressed during a fateful decade from the role of interpreter of the old revolutionary's ideas to that of chief apostle and heir.

Available information shows Lin was born in 1908, son of a Hupeh province factory owner. One of four brothers, he left home at the age of 10, worked his way through middle school and, turned towards communism, joining the party in 1925 at age 17.

Soon afterward, he became a cadet in the fourth class of the Whampoa Military Academy in Canton, thus putting his feet confidently on the military ladder.

His politico-military tutor was a then-revolutionary named Chiang Kai-shek, now president of the Formosa government of the Nationalist Chinese, arch-enemies of the Communists.

Two years after graduation, Lin became a colonel in Chiang's 4th Kuomintang army during a brief honeymoon period between Nationalists and Communists. When violent separation came, Lin led his regiment in an abortive Communist-inspired uprising in Nanchang.

Lin's association with Mao began in 1928 after he led his forces to Mao's mountain lair on the border of Hunan province.

COMMANDS AT 24
By 1932 Lin had risen to command of the 20,000-man 1st Red Army Corps which piled up an unbroken record of victories against the Nationalists.

In January, 1935, Lin's forces occupied the town of Tsunyi in Kweichow province, clearing the ground for a historic conference which elevated Mao to the party's chairmanship. Lin's part in setting the stage for this critical moment in Mao's upward climb was never forgotten.

Reaching Yenan, which was to become the Communist base for the final conquest of China, Lin became director of the anti-Japanese military-political university, a honeycomb of caves dug out of the soft Loess Mountains.

By 1948, Lin's 4th Field Army had sent the Nationalists reeling in the northeast and had captured Peking in January, 1949. Lin was hailed as "the hero of the revolutionary war." Lin successively became a member of the governing party politburo, a marshal, a vice-premier, a vice-chairman of the national defence council, and one of the five vice-chairmen of the

Judy Finds That Rainbow

NEW YORK (CP) — In death as in life, the magnetism of Judy Garland continued undiminished today, drawing thousands of admirers through the night into the morning to file past her coffin and bid goodbye.

By 2 a.m. today an estimated 18,000 people had walked past the coffin.

"She's found that rainbow now," Mary Roberts, a 20-year-old typist said. "I hope she's finally got some peace."

They queued for as long as two hours before entering the chapel for a last brief glimpse of the 47-year-old actress who died Sunday in London of an accidental overdose of sleeping pills.

At the scheduled midnight closing there were 3,000 people waiting outside the funeral parlor on Madison Avenue at East 81st Street, and Judy's husband, Mickey Deans, asked that the doors be kept open.

Bandleader's Wife Calls 'Split' Tune

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bandleader Stan Kenton's wife Jo Ann has sued him for divorce and asks the court to prevent Kenton from molesting her. Mrs. Kenton, 29, said her 57-year-old husband is living at Syanon House, a private drug rehabilitation centre in nearby Santa Monica. She told the court Tuesday she "feared for her life." The Kentons were married 23 months ago.

Improved Security Set-Up Urged In Canada's Posts

OTTAWA (CP) — Improved standards of security at Canadian posts abroad were recommended Thursday by the royal commission on security.

In a report tabled in the Commons, the commission said a great deal of confusion exists in foreign missions concerning responsibility for the security of Canadian officers and personnel.

It called for establishment of a separate security division within the external affairs department.

The report disclosed—without going into detail—that serious security problems have existed in the past within external affairs.

"There is no dearth of examples and case histories to demonstrate . . . that Canadian officials serving abroad are targets of hostile intelligence attack, especially in Communist countries," it said.

"Some years ago the department of external affairs itself suffered from serious security problems, particularly at certain missions within the Communist countries."

Many reasons had been advanced: Hasty recruiting during a period of rapid departmental expansion, for example, and "the attraction of the foreign service for individuals with certain character defects."

"Although there is no doubt that many of the factors giving rise to these situations have been minimized, the existence of such problems reflects on the past effectiveness of the departmental security system."

EXPRESS GENERAL VIEWS

The commission, headed by Montreal businessman Maxwell W. MacKenzie, made the general comment that it is not sure the present security structure "is properly adapted to the size of the present operation, and to the sophistication of the attack."

"We feel it may retain vestiges of the time when the department of external affairs was small and could be managed on an informal basis, and when few Canadians were stationed abroad."

The report tabled in the Commons was abridged for security reasons from the original document presented by the three-member commission to the government.

The commissioners said they were disturbed by the number of Canadian government offices abroad located in commercial buildings to which the public has access throughout the day and night, and in which classified material is left unprotected except by a safe during silent hours.

In some locations, areas where classified information is handled were not properly separated from areas where locally-engaged staff do their work. Steps were being taken to rectify these situations.

The reed-and-bamboo raft was blown off course by a storm and carried almost to the border between Panama and Costa Rica—farther north than the intended destination of Panama City.

After June 1, a whirlpool-like current carried them southward again along the Colombian coast they had passed earlier.

By June 7, they were opposite Punté Cruces in Colombia, where they ran aground before re-entering the Humboldt Current, which brought them into Panama bay this week.

Their misadventures lengthened the journey to 2,400 miles from 1,500.

The crew lived mostly off fish and turtles and had several fights with sea snakes and first being towed to a spot 300 miles offshore to escape the powerful Humboldt Current.

Valedictorian 'In Space' For George Elliot Grads

WINFIELD (Special) — Tom Turner was chosen by his class to be Valedictorian at the graduation ceremonies held at George Elliott Secondary School Thursday. He told them that 1969 was the year of advancement; advancement particularly in the realm of space exploration.

"This is the year man will attempt to explore the next frontier, the moon," he said.

"This is the year the colossal Saturn rocket will hurtle the astronauts of the Apollo II to an apex in the present space program. This is also the year we, as graduates, reach a crest in the undulating landscape of life. Graduation for most of the class is only one peak on their educational graph for although, perhaps not next year, we all wish to eventually further our formal education.

"The graduate is like the lunar module of the Apollo space crafts. Behind the student, is the school; its atmosphere, its contagious spirit, like the structure of the Saturn rocket trembling with willingness to propel us, better prepared, into the special vastness of society. Each grad is proud to belong to the student body of George Elliott."

"The rocket, however, is useless without the engineering and experience which fuses it into its masterful form. The school board is to the graduate what the technicians are to the rocket. I would like to thank the school board for their able management of the district."

VITAL PART
"The most important part of the educational rocket, is the fuel which keeps accelerating students into their own self discipline. The propellant of the graduate for the past years has been the knowledge and persistence of parents and teachers."

Dutch Minister Expresses Regret

THE HAGUE (AP) — Dutch Foreign Minister Joseph Luns expressed here. The Netherlands government's profound regret for an incident shortly after a Canadian wreath-placing ceremony in Amsterdam June 18.

Fifty-seven veterans of the Canadian Scottish regiment, among the liberators of Amsterdam 24 years ago, had arrived from the Normandy beaches for the ceremony at the National Monument.

Without their help, criticism and love, I am sure the ascent to graduation would have been very much more difficult for each of us.

"Speaking for each grad, I would like to thank each parent for their understanding, patience and love. The graduation of a daughter or son is as much a high point in the life of a parent as it is for the student. To the teachers, I also say thank you. At times I know it has been hard to overcome the mental inertia of some of us," he said.

Dodgers Try A Shutout To Regain Room At Top

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Los Angeles Dodgers shutout Atlanta Braves 3-0 Thursday to regain the lead in the Western Division of the National League.

Bill Singer scattered four hits to record his ninth win of the year as the Dodgers knocked the Braves out of first place—a position they assumed Wednesday by beating Los Angeles 5-3.

In other NL baseball games Thursday, Montreal Expos beat St. Louis Cardinals 8-6, San Francisco Giants beat Cincinnati Reds 4-2, Chicago Cubs downed Pittsburgh Pirates 7-5 in 10 innings, and Philadelphia Phillies tripped New York Mets 3-0.

Singer checked the Braves until he tired in the 94-degree Atlanta heat with one out in the ninth inning. Jim Brewer relieved and got the last two outs. Singer started a two-run Los Angeles rally in the third inning with a single off Pat Jarvis. Maury Wills' single and Manny Mota's infield hit filled the bases. Two runs scored when Willie Davis hit into a force play at second base and shortstop Sonny Jackson relayed a wild throw to first base. Davis hit his seventh home run three innings later.

STOPS THE REDS

Bob Bolin of San Francisco stopped Cincinnati on four hits for 6 2-3 innings and slammed a two-run homer in the third. Bobby Bonds, who opened the game with a homer, followed Bolin's blast with a triple and scored on Ron Hunt's single.

Here's Way To Beat Heat

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mel Stottlemyre found the best way to beat the heat was to get a jump on it.

Stottlemyre, given a five-run working margin in the second inning, hurled a four-hitter Thursday night as New York Yankees tamed Detroit Tigers 6-0 in hot and humid Tiger Stadium.

The right-hander's 10th triumph of the season salvaged the finale of a four-game series for the Yankees. The loss dropped the Tigers 11½ games behind the Baltimore Orioles, the American League's Eastern Division leaders, going into their critical four-game weekend set with the Orioles.

Elsewhere in the AL, Seattle Pilots scored two ninth-inning runs for a 3-2 win over Chicago White Sox; Oakland Athletics edged Kansas City Royals 3-2; Boston Red Sox nipped Cleveland Indians 4-3 in 10 innings and Minnesota Twins trimmed California Angels 7-4.

Stottlemyre, who had failed to win in three previous starts while battling control problems, mastered the Tigers easily after Joe Pepitone's three-run double climaxed the Yanks' second-inning uprising. The New York pitcher, 10-6, scattered four singles, didn't walk anybody and coasted to his 12th complete game in 19 starts—despite the 92-degree weather.

EARLY RUNS HELPED

"I was lucky we got those early runs and I didn't have any real long innings," he said. "I've been struggling lately, but with the five-run lead I was able to relax and just get the ball over the plate."

It was Stottlemyre's second shutout—both at the Tigers' expense. He fired a one-hitter against them in his only previous start at Detroit.

The Pilots fell behind 2-1 in the top of the ninth, then rallied to nip Chicago on Jerry McNertney's RBI double and pinch-hitter Tommy Davis' run-scoring single—both with two out in the bottom half of the inning.

Gene Brabender limited the White Sox to six hits, including a homer by Pete Ward, and evened his pitching record at 5-5.

Reggie Jackson slammed his 26th homer for two Oakland runs, but it took a run-scoring bloop double by Danny Cater in the seventh to push the Athletics past Kansas City. Pat Kelly's fourth-inning homer had lifted the Royals into a 2-2 tie.

Brown Bomber 'Comfortable'

NEW YORK (AP) — Former world heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis was "resting comfortably" in hospital today after he collapsed on the street Thursday.

It was feared that Louis, 55, had suffered a heart attack, but a report said the collapse was due to a physical breakdown.

A spokesman at Beekman-Downtown Hospital said Louis was in "good" condition. He was expected to remain in the hospital for observation for a few days.

Strange Things Still Done In Land Of Midnight Sun

OTTAWA (CP) — The sun circled round and round in the sky, and never came down in 31 days.

Beneath it, on a peripatetic ice pan, an international collection of men without sense of place or time were acting out a surrealistic drama in the name of science.

One of them was trying to measure the "tilt" of the ocean. Another was concentrating on the "crookedness" of gravity. A third was trying to spear a seal, but the others wouldn't let him.

The eerie silence of their 27-hour day was broken only occasionally by the roar of Russian planes a few hundred feet above them.

What sounds like a scene from a mind-boggling underground movie is a description of the activities of a Canadian-based scientific research team which visited the North Pole in April and May.

A joint project of the Dominion Observatory and the Polar Continental Shelf program, the 12-man team went to the top of the world to take gravity measurements, measure the radius of the earth at the pole, and test various methods of measuring location.

The party was led by Dr. Hans Weber, a 43-year-old native of Thun, Switzerland, who joined the observatory after coming to Canada in 1953. He is a research scientist with the gravity division of the observatory.

Dr. Fred Roots of Ottawa, co-ordinator of the Polar Continental Shelf project, was with the group for most of its 31 days.

Robert Lillestrand of Control Data Corp., Minneapolis, Minn., a physicist specializing in space navigation, was in charge of measurements that included the use of satellites to determine the location of the permanent camp—which could hardly be called permanent since it was on a moving ice floe.

With them, along with other scientists and technicians, was an Eskimo named Levi, who was in charge of building igloos.

On April 8 a five-man reconnaissance team left Alert on Ellesmere Island, Canada's most northerly outpost, and flew 540 miles north to the pole in a Twin Otter, looking for a place to land a Bristol Freighter plane.

Since the Bristol weighed 11 tons loaded, it was necessary to find thick ice that would provide a long landing strip.

The team was able to get to a spot only 1½ miles from the pole and could have walked over it if they had had the time. But the closest spot they could find for a landing strip for the big plane was 22 miles from the pole towards Alert.

Radio messages were sent back to Alert, the rest of the group proceeded to the spot, and a permanent camp was set up that eventually consisted of nine tents, three glass-bubble huts and 12 igloos.

Most of Levi's igloos were used to cover equipment with the notable exception of one he shared with Norwegian Leis Lundgaard as living accommodation.

One of the others covered a meter dropped through a hole in the ice to measure ocean currents. The heater within—or perhaps just the hole kept open by the heater—attracted one neighborhood seal who used it for a breathing hole for 10 days.

Its stay would have been considerably shorter and less pleasant if Levi and his harpoon had had their way. The rest of the team insisted upon a permanent stay of execution for their visitor.

Meanwhile, the team started on a schedule that eventually stretched the working day to 27 hours.

Each "day" the cook was asked to prepare meals three hours later than the previous "day," and each "night" the men went to bed three hours later than they had the previous time.

FRUIT TRADING DISCUSSED

The commercial counsellor for Canada in Sydney, Australia, Harry J. Horne (right) is shown discussing the world distribution of B.C. tree fruits with Eric Moore, general manager, B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd. in Kelowna. Mr. Horne was in the Okanagan visiting some of the major companies which export goods to the Australian market and he and Mr. Moore—who recently returned from a marketing trip to Australia—discussed various aspects of future trading possibilities and the adverse economic effects on Canadian soft fruit growers and processors of large imports of Australian canned fruits to the Canadian market. It is hoped that some of the trade barriers which currently prevent the importation of B.C. fruit to the Australian market may eventually be eliminated or at least relaxed.

Alaskan Fires Blanket Skies

ANCHORAGE (AP) — Visibility dropped to less than half a mile over several thousand square miles of interior Alaska as smoke from more than 50 forest fires—ranging in size up to 300,000 acres—blanketed much of the state.

Nearly 1,400 firefighters battled to control 15 fires in the Fairbanks district, including a 300,000-acre blaze northwest of the city. The city was in no danger.

At least 30 fires elsewhere were unchecked, because of their "low priority" and a lack of manpower, officials said.

Six major fires were burning in the Anchorage district, the bureau said, but the city was not threatened.

Sault Ste. Marie A Very Wet Spot

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Almost three inches of rain dumped on this city of 75,000 overnight flooded hundreds of basements, caused the evacuation of several families and brought a warning of possible contamination from public health authorities.

No firm estimate of damage was available, but city engineer Alan Jackson said it would be tens of thousands of dollars. He called it "almost unbelievable."

The city's low-lying west end bore the brunt of the flooding. In one district water two feet deep swept across streets, closing all but one thoroughfare between the east and west ends of the city.

The rain began during the afternoon and increased during the evening. Shortly after midnight, a small temporary earth dam at Fort Creek burst, sending pent-up waters swirling into the city.

In one area several families had to be evacuated by rowboat at the height of the storm.

It was not immediately known how many families had to be moved.

U.S. Rejects Proposals To Oust Saigon Regime

PARIS (Reuters) — The United States today rejected Communist demands that it replace the Saigon government in order to end the Vietnam war.

American negotiator Henry Cabot Lodge said at the Vietnam peace talks here: "As President Nixon made clear in his press conference on June 19, we categorically reject your demand that we replace the legitimate government of the Republic of South Vietnam."

Both sides dwelt on the Nixon press conference.

Hanoi and the Viet Cong accused Nixon of trying to fool the public with vague and misleading expressions of hope about withdrawing American combat troops.

Lodge described the demand for replacement of the Saigon government as "an effort to predetermine the outcome of the negotiation before it has begun."

He urged the Viet Cong to accept South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu's offer of direct talks to arrange for internationally supervised elections.

WOULD CURB REDS Saigon negotiator Pham Dang Lam declared the South Vietnam armed forces and people would never permit the Communists to seize the monopoly of political power in South Vietnam.

Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, the chief Viet Cong negotiator, said Nixon is conducting a war of aggression in Vietnam "with no end in sight."

She accused Nixon of escalating the war by carrying out more than 5,000 air sorties Saturday.

Mme. Binh, foreign minister of the clandestine Viet Cong government, said Nixon's initiative on Vietnam had not opened the path to peace.

Better Guard On Secrets Urged By Royal Commission

OTTAWA (CP) — More stringent control and more active government supervision of defence and other state secrets in the hands of industrial firms and their employees is recommended by the royal commission on security.

The commission says the task of overseeing industrial security should be given back to the defence department, which asked to be relieved of it at the end of the Second World War.

The responsibility since then has been in the department of defence production and now rests with the new department of supply and services. It has a small staff here and only two field officers, one each stationed in Montreal and Toronto to cover the whole of Canada.

Prime Minister Trudeau said on tabling the report in the Commons Thursday that responsibility for industrial security will remain in the supply department.

The commission says all industrial workers likely to be involved in handling defence contracts or other secret work for the Canadian or foreign governments should be fingerprinted. Before being cleared to work on secret matters they should be just as carefully checked for security risk as public servants.

Fingerprints would be used to check workers' identity with criminal records and the country's security files on subversive elements.

"An applicant for industrial employment who is refused employment on security grounds should not be told why, and should have no right to apply for the decision to be reviewed," the report says.

"On the other hand, an individual who already has access should be informed of the grounds for withdrawal of access to the extent possible without jeopardizing security, and told of his right to ask for a review of the department's decision by a security review board."

"Similarly, an individual who is employed by a firm on a permanent basis, and whose career is significantly inhibited because security considerations have led to the refusal of a transfer or promotion should be told the reason and of his right of review."

AUTHORITY DELEGATED The report says the government has left too much responsibility to industrial firms themselves in protecting government secrets involved in industrial work.

"In spite of provisions in contracts, enforcement by sanction is in practice difficult even if it were desirable, and reasonable security can only be achieved by co-operation."

"We have therefore been disturbed by the somewhat antagonistic relationships which appeared to exist at one time between the industrial security authorities and at least some sections of industry."

The government should train company security officers and give lectures to industrial workers on the importance of safeguarding Canadian and foreign secrets involved in defence industry and other work, the report says.

Deserters Grow In U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Army says it expects 50,000 soldiers will have deserted by the end of the current fiscal year, an increase of nearly 30 per cent compared with 1966.

In testimony released today, Lt.-Gen. A. O. Conner, army deputy chief of staff for personnel, told the House of Representatives defence appropriations subcommittee the jump in the number of soldiers going AWOL is the result of:

"Getting more kooks into the army, for one thing. We are getting more young men who are coming in undisciplined, the product of a society that trains them to resist authority."

The subcommittee also released testimony from Vice-Admiral G. M. Davis, chief of navy medicine, that 2,372 sailors were discharged for drug abuse in 1968—a three-fold climb compared with 1967.

"It is actually alarming," Davis said during the closed hearings held last March. The problem is most severe in Vietnam, he said, "and that makes it worse because particularly in the Marine Corps, and with the use of marijuana, it distorts your judgment and you can see what it might do on a patrol to a man who perhaps is not well grounded."

Conner, who said the 50,000 figure was a projection based on the first quarter of the fiscal year ending June 30, also said that more than 500 soldiers deserted to foreign nations.

Jinxed Dam Now Inaugurated

SAAS ALMAGELL (Reuters) — The giant Swiss Matmark Dam, where 88 workers were buried by an avalanche four years ago, has finally been officially inaugurated. Work on the site began more than nine years ago but was halted after the disaster, Aug. 30, 1963, when 400,000 tons of ice broke off the Aletsch Glacier and thundered down on the valley.
